ATTEMPT TO MURDER THE VICEROY OF INDIA.

Attendant Killed by Bomb Intended for Baron Hardinge.

Missile Hurled While Making His Entry in State Into Delhi.

DELHI, India, Dec. 23.—Baron Hardinge, viceroy of India, was wounded and an attendant killed by a bomb hurled at the viceroy from a house as he was entering the new capitol in state today. The bomb struck the howdah or basket of the viceroy's elephant, killing the attendant instantly.

Three splinters of the powerful bomb penetrated the back and shoulders of the viceroy, and he also was wounded in the neck by screws with which the bomb was filled, and which passed through his helmet. The doctors who removed the metal splinters from the wounds declare that it was marvellous that the viceroy escaped more serious and even fatal injuries. Lady Hardinge immediately after the explosion asked her husband if he was hurt. The viceroy replied: "All right; go on." Lady Hardinge then said: "We cannot. There is a dead man behind."

The elephant on which they were riding then halted. The viceroy tried to stand up, but reeled and fainted and the officials who gathered around had much difficulty in removing him from the elephant's back. The howdah in which he and Lady Hardinge had been seated was blown into matchwood.

The worst of the viceroy's wounds is a deep one, four inches in length, exposing the shoulder blade. His other injuries are said to be superficial. The viceroy will soon be able to leave the hospital for the vice regal lodge.

The umbrella bearer who was killed had acted in that capacity for Lord Curzon.

The thrower of the bomb has not yet been caught. A reward of 10,000 rupees (approximately $3,300) has been offered for his arrest.

The bomb thrower's attempt to kill Lord Hardinge came within a hair's breadth of being successful. The viceroy was making his entry in state into Delhi, as the last of the ceremonies in connection with the transfer of the capital from Calcutta. The transfer was made in October last, but Lord Hardinge was not to take formal possession of his new quarters until today. A large gathering of troops, officials and Punjab chiefs was present to welcome the party.

The splendid elephant procession had just left the railway station, passing through Chandal chowk, when the bomb was thrown. It was hurled by a man standing on a housetop and it struck the howdah, or basket of the viceroy's elephant, in which he and Lady Hardinge were riding. The attendant holding a large parasol over the vice regal pair was instantly killed.

Lord Hardinge was wounded in the shoulder, but how seriously could not be determined in the confusion which

MELLEN INDICTED BY FEDERAL GRAND JURY.

Charged With Violating Anti-Trust Law in Connection With Monopoly Agreement.

NEW YORK, Dec. 23.—Charles S. Mellen, president of the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad Company; E. J. Chamberlin, president of the Grand Trunk Railway of Canada, and Alfred W. Smithers, chairman of the Grand Trunk board of directors, were indicted by the federal grand jury here this afternoon, charged with violating the Sherman anti-trust law, in connection with the alleged monopoly agreement between the two roads.

The indictment avers that Mellen, Chamberlin and Smithers were engaged, August 3, 1912, and have since engaged, in an unlawful combination to prevent the construction and completion of certain extensions of the Grand Trunk Railway into New England. It is also charged that they conspired to prevent the operation of steamships between Providence and New York and to prevent transportation of persons and property in interstate and foreign commerce over these lines of railroads and steamships.

Seven overt acts are alleged by the government. It is charged that the defendants met in New York August 1, 1912, and discussed a memorandum theretofore exchanged between Messrs. Chamberlin and Mellen, which provided that the Grand Trunk should sell the New Haven system all its interests in the Central of Vermont and its subsidiaries, which would include all the proposed extensions into New England.

The second overt act alleged embraces a charge that Chamberlin wrote to Vice President J. E. Dalrymple of the Grand Trunk, saying that he and Smithers had had a satisfactory interview with Mellen and it was agreed that Dalrymple and Benjamin Chambell of the New Haven should meet quickly in Mellen's office and discuss new divisions of New England business.

The third act alleges that the defendants held further meetings in New York city September 20 of this year, the fourth that they held another meeting in New York October 1, the fifth that at this last-mentioned meeting Mellen initiated and gave to the co-defendants a memorandum of the agreement, providing among other things that the Grand Trunk is "to retain the Central Vermont and the existing controlled lines, and continue its existing business as at present."

The sixth overt act alleged is that Mellen caused the withdrawal of a petition previously filed by his directors with the Public Service Commission of New Hampshire, asking authority to extend one of the New Haven lines paralleling and competing with a portion of the Central Vermont Railway.

The seventh overt act set forth is that October 9, 1912, Chamberlin caused the work of construction of a line from Palmer, Mass., to Providence, R. I., to be abandoned.

After describing the New Haven system and the extension of the Grand Trunk into New England, including the Central Vermont, the indictment tells of the formation of the Southern Rhode Island and the Southern New England Railroad Corporation in Massachusetts. It sets forth that work was begun on the Palmer-Providence line May 22, 1912, and continued until Nov. 9, 1912; also that a contract was entered into between the Grand Trunk and the Central Vermont to operate steamships between Providence and New York. During that time, says the indictment, $3,000,000 had been expended on construction work and in building two steamships.

The indictment avers "that there is now and has long been a large volume of interstate and foreign commerce in the transporation of persons and property between Providence, Pawtucket, Woonsocket, Boston and other cities and towns on the proposed lines of railroads and the cities of Montreal, Chicago, Detroit, Milwaukee St. Paul, Minneapolis and other Western cities; and the greater portion of this commerce was and is carried by the New Haven system, but that upon the completion and operation of the Grand Trunk extensions that system (the Grand Trunk) proposed and intended to, and but for the commission of the crime set forth would have actively competed with the New Haven system for such commerce."

None of the defendants were represented in court when the indictment was handed up, but counsel for the government said that all three would surrender themselves within a few days, notwithstanding the fact that Messrs. Smithers and Chamberlin are not residents of the United States, Mr. Smithers's headquarters are in London, while Mr. Chamberlin has offices and his residence in Montreal.

The railroad situation in New England was brought to the attention of the federal Department of Justice first by the state officers of Massachusetts and Rhode Island, who declared that the abandonment of certain extension projects then indicated was due to a secret traffic and mileage agreement between the two roads. November 19 representatives of the two states called on President Taft and Attorney General Wickersham, pointed out that the individual states were unable to cope with the situation and asked the government to take action. The state officials asserted that the alleged agreements between the New Haven and Grand Trunk roads meant the abandonment of projects for the extension of the Grand Trunk line through territory now monopolized by the New Haven. In its investigation during the past month the jury examined officials of both roads and also experts representing New England states and cities most interested.

After the indictment was filed Assistant United States District Attorney Guiler called on C. N. Scheafe, Jr., attorney of the New Haven road, to produce President Mellen in the federal court to plead to the indictment. A similar notice was sent to the general counsel for the Grand Trunk, to produce President Camberlin and Mr. Smithers. It is expected by the federal authorities that all three requests will be complied with. If not, the government lawyers plan to have bench warrants issued for their appearance. In the case of Mr. Mellen the government will insist, it is understood, that he plead to the indictment before Christmas. Mr. Chamberlin is in this city, but no expression has been obtained from him thus far.

MATTER YET TO BE TRIED.

Mellen Does Not Think It Proper to Discuss Indictment.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Dec. 23.—President Mellen of the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad Company was at his office here this afternoon when he received word of his indictment by a federal grand jury in New York city. After he had been informed of its general character he authorized the following: "Mr. Mellen does not feel that it would be proper for him to discuss a matter which is yet to be tried."

DESIRES NO ACTION AT PRESENT.

Prince Ludwig Vetoes Movement to be Placed on Throne as King.

MUNICH, Dec. 23.—Prince Ludwig, the new prince regent of Bavaria, sent an autograph letter to the Bavarian premier today, vetoing the movement to place him on the throne as king. He declares that he desires loyally to administer the inheritance bequeathed to him by his father and therefore, in view of the popular movement in regard to the regency, he expressed categorically his desire that nothing should be done for the present in the matter.

OVERHAULING TO COST $250,000.

Alterations to be Made to the North Dakota and Minnesota.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 23.—Among the big items of ship repair work to be done at the navy yards next year are extensive alterations on battleships North Dakota and Minnesota, each of which is to be overhauled at a cost of $250,000. The big colliers Leonidas and Hannibal are to be turned into survey ships at an expense of $100,000 for the former and $75,000 for the latter.

IRRESPECTIVE OF POLITICS.

Men of Wisdom and Experience to Handle Wilson's Inauguration.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 23.—Politics will have small place in the personnel of the committee which will have charge of the arrangements attending the inauguration of Woodrow Wilson as President. This has been settled and the wisdom and experience of men who have handled inaugurations in the past will be called upon, irrespective of politics. The names of those who will be expected to take care of the multiplicity of details will be named today and the chairmen of the 26 committees which will shoulder the burden will be selected by the chairmen, William C. Eustis.

At a meeting of the committee it was decided to ask Congress again to grant permission for the use of the pension building. It was also decided to ask the national legislature for permission to quarter visiting troops in the halls of public buildings. This permission was refused four years ago. The finance committee reports that there will be plenty of money forthcoming to meet the expenses and a larger crowd than has ever attended an inauguration is expected.

AROUND RHODE ISLAND.

Dr. Burt L. Hartwell Appointed New Director of the Experiment Station.

Glocester Pays State Tax, But West Greenwich Tied Up—Applications for Postal Savings Bonds.

Dr. Burt L. Hartwell, for a number of years connected with the Rhode Island State College of Agriculture, has been appointed director of the experiment station to succeed Dr. Homer J. Wheeler, who resigned a month ago to engage with a fertilizer company. Since the resignation of Dr. Wheeler Dr. Hartwell has been the acting director of the station, in which he has held various offices. The new director was born in Littleton, Mass., in 1865 and for the first 19 years of his life lived on a dairy farm. He then attended the Massachusetts Agricultural College and upon graduation received the degree of bachelor of science. He received the same degree from Boston University in 1889. After his graduation he became a member of the staff of Amherst and was an assistant to the late Dr. John Goessmann, director of the agricultural experiment station there. While there he did experimental work and tabulated results of feeding experiments. In 1891 he was appointed assistant chemist at the State College experiment station, was subsequently advanced to the station of associate chemist, and later professor in agricultural chemistry. Dr. Hartwell has published numerous articles in connection with the work at the station and issued many bulletins. He has also had published several special articles in scientific magazines, especially the Journal of Industrial and Engineering Chemistry.

Glocester, the home town of General Treasurer Read, has paid its state tax, amounting to $439.92, leaving but two towns, New Shoreham and West Greenwich, to meet their financial obligations to the state, due December 15. It will be some time before West Greenwich will be able to pay its debt. It is possible that a new assessment may be ordered by the local assessors. At present the town cannot collect a cent of taxes, as the taxpayers refuse to part with their money until the legality of the present assessment is determined. Now pending before the supreme court for a decision is the suit of the town against the Warwick & Coventry Water Company, the concern declining to pay its tax on the ground that it was not properly levied. The taxpayers say that, if the tax against the company is illegal, then the same is true of their individual cases. It is expected that New Shoreham will make its payment this week.

Information made public by Postmaster General Hitchcock shows that postal savings depositors in Rhode Island have made application for $2,040 of the postal savings bonds to be distributed January 1. Application for this amount has been made by 13 depositors. Twenty three applications have been received for the bonds in the registered form, 14 of the $20 denomination and nine of the $100 denomination, making a total of $1,180. Eleven applications have been made for the coupon bonds, three for the $20 denomination and eight for the $100 denomination, making a total of $860. With respect to the amount of bonds applied for, Providence leads other cities of the state with a total of $1,500; Pawtucket follows with $300 and Westerly, $100. This is the fourth bond issue since the installation of the postal savings system in this country, the first issue having been made on July 1, 1911. Compared with the applications made by depositors in Rhode Island July 1 last the present applications show an increase of $1,300 or 209.1 per cent. July 1 last three depositors applied for $806 of the bonds.

Considering that its campaign to bring about a reduction in the price of eggs is already won, the Rhode Island branch of the Housewives' League is making preparations to launch a similar agitation and fight on the milk question. The officials of the state branch have been investigating the milk situation since September, and as soon as all preparations are completed, the campaign will begin. Nearly 100 dealers in Providence Saturday received letters from the league, requesting them to label their eggs properly and to reduce the price of storage eggs to 25 cents. The officers of the league expressed confidence that the dealers would see the advantage in acceding to the request and would fall in line.

The death of William S. Forsyth of Providence, secretary of the Sherwood Ice Company, following a fall from an automobile on the railroad bridge on Cranston street, Providence, was declared, to be an accident by Medical Examiner Griffin, who investigated the case. The main thing the medical examiner found to criticise in the accident was the condition which has existed at the bridge for 20 years or more, which allowed a raised covering for water pipes to extend into the street. A gas lamp, hidden behind a big telegraph post, which threw a dense shadow on the end of the covering nearest the Cranston side of the bridge, also tended to add to the bad conditions.

Bishop John W. Hamilton of Boston, in charge of the Methodist Episcopal churches in New England, assisted in the organization of a new parish in the Darlington section at the Epworth Chapel in Pawtucket Sunday. The work of organizing has been in progress several years. The parishioners of the First Methodist Church under the direction of Rev. Willard O. Nuzum, pastor, taking an active part. Details of the work were inspected, and it is expected that a modern house of worship will be erected. It will consist, it is thought, of cement blocks faced with granite, and will be two stories high, the upper part for the religious worship and the lower according to the arrangements, for a kitchen, dining room, gymnasium and also club rooms. It will be erected on the corner of Newport avenue and Crescent road with a 150 feet frontage and will cost in the neighborhood of $5,000. Two collections were taken at Sunday's services, one netting $650 to cover the expense of installing a new organ and the other $2,000 for the fund for the proposed new building.

The appointment of Nathaniel H Brown as postmaster at East Greenwich has been confirmed by the United States Senate. Postmaster Brown's commission expired December 14, 1912.

NEW SONG FOR CHRISTMAS.

Bells Ringing With Hope and Expectancy of a Great Change That is Coming.

[Helen Keller, in Metropolitan.]

Hear, oh, hear! The Christmas bells are ringing, peal upon peal, chime upon chime! Full and clear they ring, and the air quivers with joy. What is the burden of their music as it floats far and wide? Awake! Awake! it says. A great change is coming—peace upon earth, good will to all men.

The bells and I are strong with a new hope, vibrant with expectancy of this great change. Already men and women are working and thinking and living for this great change, and their efforts are mighty with the might of intelligence and good will. For them the bells of a world-Christmas are ringing, and shall not cease with the brief hours of one glad day. Every day, every year these men and women plan, work and dream, and their works are the heavenly message of the sweet-tongued bells!

Hear, oh, hear the bells! For ages our Christmas bells have rung their message of peace upon earth and good will to all men. For ages they have summoned a sleeping world to a new life, a new ideal, a new joy. But too often they have sounded in ears sealed with ignorance. Too often has their glad news passed unheeded: "O children of men, your happiness lies but your will away from you. Unite, love, serve all and ye shall grasp it."

Now, here and now, the bells and I will be heard! Not once a year, but from morning to morning we will be heard singing exultant, sure of our message. Let the sun pour its flood of light upon the land or let the whole sky be dark, we will send our song up and down and all around, our song of the great change. Too long have men turned their faces from their tasks, from the needs of the common day and fixed their eyes upon a better life somethme, somewhere. Too long have they dreamed of a distant life, instead of bringing that life into their earthly days. The great change ushers a true religion into the world, now and here—service for all men equally, devotion of each to the good of all alike.

Hear! Today the bells and I call you to the Christmas of mankind. For it has begun, and we shall not falter nor turn back until every man and woman and child in this land and in every land has a chance to live happily and to develop his mind and do the best of which he is capable. Generation after generation has learned from its mothers' lips the story of the birth of Christ, and slowly the words have borne flowers—and the fruit is the great change. The Great Change is the new faith, the new effort to secure for every man his full share of the means, the comforts, the health and knowledge, the virtue, which humanize life.

William Corcoran Eustis Brings Experience to Task of Directing Wilson's Inauguration.

Mr. William Corcoran Eustis, who has been appointed chairman of the inaugural committee, is a former summer resident of Newport. Upon him will devolve direction of the arrangements for the elaborate ceremonies which will mark the return of the Democrats to power March 4 next.

Mrs. Eustis will be escorted by President Wilson when he opens the inaugural ball on the evening of that day, and Mr. Eustis will escort Mrs. Wilson.

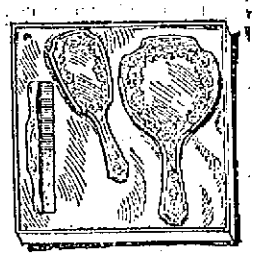

To their important task Mr. and Mrs. Eustis bring much of political and social experience. Mr. Eustis's father was Representative George Eustis of Louisiana, who served in Congress before the war and married Miss Louise Corcoran, daughter of W. W. Corcoran, Washington financier and philanthropist, who founded the Corcoran Gallery of Art. George Eustis became secretary to John M. Mason, Confederate commissioner to France, and William Corcoran Eustis was born in Paris in 1862. Mrs. Eustis was Miss Edith L. Morton, daughter of Levi P. Morton, Vice President of the United States in the Harrison administration.

Mr. Eustis's appointment is gratifying to all who wish to see the inauguration conducted in dignity and comfort. He is a Democrat and was a contributor to the Democratic campaign fund. His home in Washington is Corcoran House, 11 street, just across Lafayette square from the White House. Daniel Webster once lived there, and for decades it has occupied a notable position in the social life of the national capital. Senator Chauncey M. Depew of New York, occupied the house during a portion of his Congressional service.

Mr. Eustis also has a beautiful country estate, "Oatlands" near Leesburg, in Loudon county, Va. He has been active in the development of fox hunting in the Loudon valley and also has hunted in England and Ireland. Mr. Eustis was in the diplomatic corps, at one time serving in the embassy at London and also when his father was Minister to France. He is a graduate of the University of Virginia and the Harvard Law School.

TO ESCORT REID'S BODY.

Naval Vessels to Meet Funeral Ship and Seamen Accompany Remains to Cathedral.

Arrangements have been completed for the reception of the body of the late American ambassador, Whitelaw Reid. Battleships Florida and North Dakota and destroyers Roe, Paulding, Drayton and McCall, now at New York, will proceed to Tompkinsville by December 31 to await the sighting of British cruisor Natal, which is bearing the body to the United States. Colors are to be half-masted by all ships as soon as the Natal is sighted. The escort will meet the funeral ship off Nantucket light about sunset January 3 and return with her to the North river, where they will anchor off Ninety-fifth street during the forenoon of January 3.

Rear Admiral Bradley A. Fiske, in command of the escort, has directed that the senior commanding officer of the escort will be in general charge of the arrangements for the removal of the remains of the late ambassador from the Natal to the Cathedral of St. John the Divine. Two companies of seamen and two of marines will be landed from both the Florida and the North Dakota and will form the funeral escort at the place of landing. Eight bluejackets as body bearers will accompany the coffin from the ship to the cathedral.

Upon commencement of the removal of the remains from the Natal battleships Florida and North Dakota will fire 19 guns at one-minute intervals. Officers will be in dress uniform and overcoats, with mourning badge on left arm and sword belt. A commander will be appointed by Rear Admiral Fiske to attend the commander and officers of the Natal.

SWEDISH PHYSICAL DRILLS.

System Being Established at Training Stations, Beginning With Newport.

Regarding the progress of the introduction of Swedish physical drills in the navy the Secretary of the Navy has issued this statement:

"As a substitute for the physical drill hitherto prescribed in the navy midshipmen and a number of petty officers detailed from the fleet are being trained at the Naval Academy in the Swedish system of physical training, and the same training is being established at the training stations, beginning with Newport, so that the system may be spread throughout the fleet and uniformity of instruction established and maintained.

"Officers will be the principal physical instructors. Petty officers will be needed as assistant instructors, and in order that their training may be uniform classes for their instruction also will be maintained at Annapolis in four month courses, beginning about November 1 and March 1 each year.

"A radical difference from the existing physical drill is that the new system must be taught to comparatively few men at one time, and the instructor must give constant attention to individuals to insure against careless, imperfect or incorrect performance of the various movements. The new system will be more effective to inculcate habits of greater care, control and alertness in movement, and more attentiveness, as well as increased strength and activity, so that men will not only improve in bearing and carriage, but will acquire a habit more responsive to commands."

FOR MISS HELEN GOULD.

Officers and Enlisted Men of United States Navy Start Fund for Testimonial.

It is announced that officers and enlisted men of the United States navy have started a fund for the purpose of giving a testimonial to Miss Helen M. Gould, who is to marry Finley J. Shepard. Rear Admiral Hugo Osterhaus, commander-in-chief of the North Atlantic squadron, issued an unofficial notice directing that the fund collected be placed in the hands of the paymaster of the Delaware. It is said that both officers and enlisted men feel deeply indebted to Miss Gould for the interest she has taken in the service and wish to present to her a token of their esteem and affection.

A notice posted on board the rear admiral's flagship, the Utah, made public the arrangement, which was to have been kept a secret until the day Miss Gould becomes a bride. It was addressed to the division commanders and commanding officers of all ships and carried the caption, "Subject:—Wedding Present, Miss Helen Gould." It was stated that at the request of chief petty officers the notice was posted. Embodied in the notice was a request that as many men as possible subscribe to the fund. Twenty-five cents each was the sum asked.

It was suggested that not so much the sum raised as the number of men whose names will appear on the list will show the appreciation of the men. The subscription is to be forwarded in a combination check to the paymaster of the Delaware not later than January 5.

The commander-in-chief suggested that a separate subscription be taken from the officers for a similar purpose and that these sums be forwarded to the same paymaster in separate checks. A committee of enlisted men and the commanding officer of the Delaware will be appointed to purchase the present for the enlisted men and have it suitably engraved and forwarded to Miss Gould. A similar committee will act for the officers.

NEW ORDER ON SEA DUTY.

Not Intended to Change Practice on Foreign Stations, But to Set Records Straight.

Many protests received by the Secretary of the Navy regarding the recent general order which revoked the order of January 30, 1902, stating that service performed in Cuba, Porto Rico, the Hawaiian Islands, Guam, the Samoan islands and on the Asiatic station would be considered as sea service, have been answered by an explanation of the new order.

When the order was issued many of the naval officers on duty in Washington formed an opinion that the Navy Department was "gunning for somebody in the Philippines." As first construed by the officers it gave the department authorization to keep an officer in the Philippines or on other of the insular possessions for his term of shore duty and then to put him on a ship in the same waters for his tour. This apparently would enable the department to keep an officer indefinitely in the Philippines or in Cuba or in Guam. This was the question asked of the department.

Rear Admiral Philip Andrews, chief of the bureau of navigation and Acting Secretary of the Navy, has issued a statement correcting this misunderstanding. He says:

"The purpose of the original order was to count such foreign service on shore, in the Philippines and some of the other places mentioned, as a cruise or part of a cruise according to its length. There is no intention to change this practice, except for the Hawaiian islands, which will count as shore duty. Foreign service on shore, however, is legally 'shore duty beyond the seas,' and it will be so shown in the records in compliance with law. This change cannot be made in the Navy Register for 1913, however, without too long delaying its issue, but the Navy Register for 1914 will contain a separate column for 'shore duty beyond the seas.'"

ORDERS TO NAVAL OFFICERS.

The Navy Department announces the following orders to officers:

Lieutenant Commander J. R. de Frees, ordered to the bureau of ordnance, January 1, 1913.

Lieutenant (junior grade), W. G. Child, ordered to the Fore River Shipbuilding Company, Quincy, Mass., January 13.

Medical Director E. H. Green, detached from the navy recruiting station, New York, January 16, and ordered to duty as president of the board of medical examiners at Washington.

Surgeon H. D. Wilson, ordered to the navy recruiting station, Buffalo, N. Y., January 13.

Chief Gunner A. S. Mackenzie, detached from the navy yard, Philadelphia, January 2, and ordered to the Maryland.

Gardner J. K. Thompson, detached from the Maryland and ordered home and to wait orders.

MELLEN THE RESOURCEFUL.

[Boston Budget-Beacon.]

Charles S. Mellen—Mellen the aggressive—is again to the front in defense of a unified railroad system for the benefit of all New England. In his masterful letter addressed to the public he confounds all critics, and lays his finger right on the source of the personally promoted campaign of defamation that has been endangering the business interests of all New England. Mr. Mellen's letter is not only forceful, logical and harmonious, but furnishes a two-column text-book from which every slander against himself, and his management of the New England railroad lines, may be answered by any one who wants truth to triumph over error.

While thunderstorms are threatening from Providence to Washington, Mellen goes calmly forward in the upbuilding of a railroad system for New England, and calls upon all interested in her expansion and development to unite with him in the slogan: "Sail From Boston; But First See New England." The response to Mr. Mellen's call has been more vigorous in the West than in New England. The agent of the Hamburg American line says his inquiries for Boston bookings from the West have been astonishing and are the result of the advertising campaigns to promote the interests of New England and the Port of Boston.

Mr. Mellen is not only aggressive, but most resourceful, and if his trumpet call to New England to sound "Halt!" in the campaign of calumny that has been promoted against New England's transportation system is heeded he will be, some day, rightfully acclaimed the captain of New England's industrial hosts.

BRITONS GAMBLE IN LOTTERIES.

[Truth.]

Most of the foreign lottery touts indulge in frigid and calculated misrepresentations regarding the real price of the tickets, the fact that payments have to be made for a whole series of drawings being concealed. One firm now on the warpath in connection with the Royal Saxon Lottery has tried the experiment of perfect frankness. They show that there are 110,000 tickets to be sold at £15 each for the five drawings. This produces a total of £1,650,000. The prizes amount to £1,040,050; and there is accordingly the tidy litle sumt of £609,950 for the expenses and profits of the promoters and agents of the lottery. The bulk of the money comes out of the pockets of Britons at home and in the colonies, who are the chief patrons of these foolish gambles.

WORDS FROM HOME.

Statements That May Be Investigated. Testimony of Newport Citizens.

When a Newport citizen comes to the front, telling his friends and neighbors of his experience, you can rely on his sincerity. The statements of people residing in far away places do not command your confidence. Home endorsement is the kind that backs Doan's Kidney Pills. Such testimony is convincing. Investigation proves it true. Below is a statement of a Newport resident. No stronger proof of merit can be had.

John L. Cookingham, 20 Poplar St., Newport, R. I., says: "I gladly confirm the statement I gave for publication in 1908 recommending Doan's Kidney Pills. My kidneys troubled me for some time. The kidney secretions contained sediment, and were irregular in passage, causing me annoyance. My back also ached severely. I finally used Doan's Kidney Pills, procured at Wright & Hay's Drug Store, and they gave me entire relief."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

Remember the name—Doan's—and take no other.

A FACE AT NOEL.

[Edith M. Thomas, in Lippincott's.]

In my own Provence (how well I remember!),
When we all were sat at the Christmas feast,
Warm light on faces of greatest and least,
There would come a long cry outside the door,
Keen as the wind of the bleak December:
"Give to us poor from your yule-log's store!"
In my own Provence (how well I remember!)
There was one who, smiling, would rise from her seat,
And, heaping a platter with bread and meat,
With figs and fugasso, would open the door,
While in blew the wind of the bleak December,
And snow came sifting along the floor.
In my own Provence (how well I remember!)
Those at the door I never once saw—
They were God's poor, to be held in awe!
But the angel face my Mother wore,
Fronting the night and the bleak December,
Her face—how it grows on me more and more!

THE SHORTEST DAY.

Oh, wake and call me early,
Call me early, mother dear;
Tomorrow is the shortest day
Of all the short leap year.

And if I chance to drowse again,
Keep calling—do not stop;
No time to sleep at Christmastide—
I gotter go and shop.

Wake me, in spite of father—
Who tells me sharp and terse
That Christmas is the shortest day—
He knows it by his purse.

WHEN SANTA CLAUS COMES.

Merrily, merrily, merrily oh!
The reindeer prance across the snow;
We hear their tinkling silver bells,
Whose merry music softly tells
Old Santa Claus is coming.

Merrily, merrily, merrily oh!
The evergreens in the woodland grow;
They rustle gently in the breeze,
Oh, don't you think the Christmas trees
Know Santa Claus is coming?

Merrily, merrily, merrily oh!
We've hung our stockings all in a row.
Into our beds we'll softly creep,
Just shut our eyes and go to sleep
And wait—for Santa Claus is coming.

FANCIES.

He asked strange questions as a child;
To answer them they tried in vain.
With airs superior he smiled
As they endeavored to explain.
Now, full grown, with a polished brow,
He brings up "problems" strange, forsooth.
He asks more foolish questions now
Than in his very early youth.

AROUND RHODE ISLAND.

Dr. Burt L. Hartwell Appointed New Director of the Experiment Station.

Glocester Pays State Tax, But West Greenwich Tied Up—Applications for Postal Savings Bonds.

Dr. Burt L. Hartwell, for a number of years connected with the Rhode Island State College of Agriculture, has been appointed director of the experiment station to succeed Dr. Homer J. Wheeler, who resigned a month ago to engage with a fertilizer company. Since the resignation of Dr. Wheeler Dr. Hartwell has been the acting director of the station, in which he has held various offices. The new director was born in Littleton, Mass., in 1865 and for the first 19 years of his life lived on a dairy farm. He then attended the Massachusetts Agricultural College and upon graduation received the degree of bachelor of science. He received the same degree from Boston University in 1889. After his graduation he became a member of the staff of Amherst and was an assistant to the late Dr. John Goessmann, director of the agricultural experiment station there. While there he did experimental work and tabulated results of feeding experiments. In 1891 he was appointed assistant chemist at the State College experiment station, was subsequently advanced to the station of associate chemist, and later professor in agricultural chemistry. Dr. Hartwell has published numerous articles in connection with the work at the station and issued many bulletins. He has also had published several special articles in scientific magazines, especially the Journal of Industrial and Engineering Chemistry.

Glocester, the home town of General Treasurer Read, has paid its state tax, amounting to $189.92, leaving but two towns, New Shoreham and West Greenwich, to meet their financial obligations to the state, due December 15. It will be some time before West Greenwich will be able to pay its debt. It is possible that a new assessment may be ordered by the local assessors. At present the town cannot collect a cent of taxes, as the taxpayers refuse to part with their money until the legality of the present assessment is determined. Now pending before the supreme court for a decision is the suit of the town against the Warwick & Coventry Water Company, the concern declining to pay its tax on the ground that it was not properly levied. The taxpayers say that, if the tax against the company is illegal, then the same is true of their individual cases. It is expected that New Shoreham will make its payment this week.

Information made public by Postmaster General Hitchcock shows that postal savings depositors in Rhode Island have made application for $2,040 of the postal savings bonds to be distributed January 1. Application for this amount has been made by 15 depositors. Twenty three applications have been received for the bonds in the registered form, 14 of the $20 denomination and nine of the $100 denomination, making a total of $1,180. Eleven applications have been made for the coupon bonds, three for the $20 denomination and eight for the $100 denomination, making a total of $860. With respect to the amount of bonds applied for, Providence leads other cities of the state with a total of $1,560; Pawtucket follows with $300 and Westerly, $100. This is the fourth bond issue since the installation of the postal savings system in this country, the first issue having been made on July 1, 1911. Compared with the applications made by depositors in Rhode Island July 1 last the present applications show an increase of $1,360 or 209.1 per cent. July 1 last three depositors applied for $600 of the bonds.

Considering that its campaign to bring about a reduction in the price of eggs is already won, the Rhode Island branch of the Housewives' League is making preparations to launch a similar agitation and fight on the milk question. The officials of the state branch have been investigating the milk situation since September, and as soon as all preparations are completed, the campaign will begin. Nearly 100 dealers in Providence Saturday received letters from the league, requesting them to label their eggs properly and to reduce the price of storage eggs to 25 cents. The officers of the league expressed confidence that the dealers would see the advantage in acceding to the request and would fall in line.

The death of William S. Forsyth of Providence, secretary of the Sherwood Ice Company, following a fall from an automobile on the railroad bridge on Cranston street, Providence, was declared to be an accident by Medical Examiner Griffin, who investigated the case. The main thing the medical examiner found to criticise in the accident was the condition which has existed at the bridge for 20 years or more, which allowed a raised covering for water pipes to extend into the street. A gas lamp, hidden behind a big telegraph post, which threw a dense shadow on the end of the covering nearest the Cranston side of the bridge, also tended to add to the bad conditions.

Bishop John W. Hamilton of Boston, in charge of the Methodist Episcopal churches in New England, assisted in the organization of a new parish in the Darlington section at the Epworth Chapel in Pawtucket Sunday. The work of organizing has been in progress several years. The parishioners of the First Methodist Church under the direction of Rev. Willard O. Nuzum, pastor, taking an active part. Details of the wrok were inspected, and it is expected that a modern house of worship will be erected. It will consist, it is thought, of cement blocks faced with granite, and will be two stories high, the upper part for the religious worship and the lower according to the arrangements, for a kitchen, dining room, gymnasium and also club rooms. It will be erected on the corner of Newport avenue and Crescent road with a 150 feet frontage and will cost in the neighborhood of $5,000. Two collections were taken at Sunday's services, one netting $650 to cover the expense of installing a new organ and the other $2,000 for the fund for the proposed new building.

The appointment of Nathaniel H Brown as postmaster at East Greenwich has been confirmed by the United States Senate. Postmaster Brown's commission expired December 14, 1912.

NEW SONG FOR CHRISTMAS.

Bells Ringing With Hope and Expectancy of a Great Change That is Coming.

[Helen Keller, in Metropolitan.]

Hear, oh, hear! The Christmas bells are ringing, peal upon peal, chime upon chime! Full and clear they ring, and the air quivers with joy. What is the burden of their music as it floats far and wide? Awake! Awake! it says. A great change is coming—peace upon earth, good will to all men.

The bells and I are strong with a new hope, vibrant with expectancy of this great change. Already men and women are working and thinking and living for this great change, and their efforts are mighty with the might of intelligence and good will. For them the bells of a world-Christmas are ringing, and shall not cease with the brief hours of one glad day. Every day, every year these men and women plan, work and dream, and their works are the heavenly message of the sweet-tongued bells!

Hear, oh, hear the bells! For ages our Christmas bells have rung their message of peace upon earth and good will to all men. For ages they have summoned a sleeping world to a new life, a new ideal, a new joy. But too often they have sounded in ears sealed with ignorance. Too often has their glad news passed unheeded: "O children of men, your happiness lies but your will away from you. Unite, love, serve all and ye shall grasp it."

Now, here and now, the bells and I will be heard! Not once a year, but from morning to morning we will be heard singing exultant, sure of our message. Let the sun pour its flood of light upon the land or let the whole sky be dark, we will send our song up and down and all around, our song of the great change. Too long have men turned their faces from their tasks, from the needs of the common day and fixed their eyes upon a better life sometime, somewhere. Too long have they dreamed of a distant life, instead of bringing that life into their earthly days. The great change ushers a true religion into the world, now and here—service for all men equally, devotion of each to the good of all alike.

Hear! Today the bells and I call you to the Christmas of mankind. For it has begun, and we shall not falter nor turn back until every man and woman and child in this land and in every land has a chance to live happily and to develop his mind and do the best of which he is capable. Generation after generation has learned from its mothers' lips the story of the birth of Christ, and slowly the words have borne flowers—and the fruit is the great change. The Great Change is the new faith, the new effort to secure for every man his full share of the means, the comforts, the health and knowledge, the virtue, which humanize life.

LEAGUE WINS FROM OWLS.

Saturday evening the Owls of the St. Joseph's Holy Name Society and the Reading Athletic Club played an interesting game of basket ball in St. Joseph's hall, the latter winning by a score of 31 to 23. Sheehan and McManus did the best work for the owls and Tierney and Murry for Reading. The line-up was as follows:

William Corcoran Eustis Brings Experience to Task of Directing Wilson's Inauguration.

Mr. William Corcoran Eustis, who has been appointed chairman of the inaugural committee, is a former summer resident of Newport. Upon him will devolve direction of the arrangements for the elaborate ceremonies which will mark the return of the Democrats to power March 4 next.

Mrs. Eustis will be escorted by President Wilson when he opens the inaugural ball on the evening of that day, and Mr. Eustis will escort Mrs. Wilson.

To their important task Mr. and Mrs. Eustis bring much of political and social experience. Mr. Eustis's father was Representative George Eustis of Louisiana, who served in Congress before the war and married Miss Louise Corcoran, daughter of W. W. Corcoran, Washington financier and philanthropist, who founded the Corcoran Gallery of Art. George Eustis became secretary to John M. Mason, Confederate commissioner to France, and William Corcoran Eustis was born in Paris in 1862. Mrs. Eustis was Miss Edith L. Morton, daughter of Levi P. Morton, Vice President of the United States in the Harrison administration.

Mr. Eustis's appointment is gratifying to all who wish to see the inauguration conducted in dignity and comfort. He is a Democrat and was a contributor to the Democratic campaign fund. His home in Washington is Corcoran House, H street, just across Lafayette square from the White House. Daniel Webster once lived there, and for decades it has occupied a notable position in the social life of the national capital. Senator Chauncey M. Depew of New York occupied the house during a portion of his Congressional service.

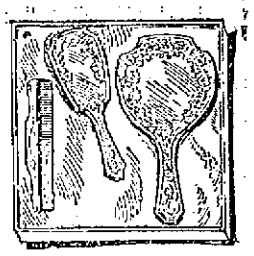

Mr. Eustis also has a beautiful country estate, "Oaklands" near Leesburg, in Loudon county, Va. He has been active in the development of fox hunting in the Loudon valley and also has hunted in England and Ireland. Mr. Eustis was in the diplomatic corps, at one time serving in the embassy at London and also when his father was Minister to France. He is a graduate of the University of Virginia and the Harvard Law School.

TO ESCORT REID'S BODY.

Naval Vessels to Meet Funeral Ship and Seamen Accompany Remains to Cathedral.

Arrangements have been completed for the reception of the body of the late American ambassador, Whitelaw Reid. Battleships Florida and North Dakota and destroyers Roe, Paulding, Drayton and McCall, now at New York, will proceed to Tompkinsville by December 31 to await the sighting of British cruiser Natal, which is bearing the body to the United States. Colors are to be half-masted by all ships as soon as the Natal is sighted. The escort will meet the funeral ship off Nantucket light about sunset January 2 and return with her to the North river, where they will anchor off Ninety-fifth street during the forenoon of January 3.

Rear Admiral Bradley A. Fiske, in command of the escort, has directed that the senior commanding officer of the escort will be in general charge of the arrangements for the removal of the remains of the late ambassador from the Natal to the Cathedral of St. John the Divine. Two companies of seamen and two of marines will be landed from both the Florida and the North Dakota and will form the funeral escort at the place of landing. Eight bluejackets as body bearers will accompany the coffin from the ship to the cathedral.

Upon commencement of the removal of the remains from the Natal battleships Florida and North Dakota will fire 19 guns at one-minute intervals. Officers will be in dress uniform and overcoats, with mourning badge on left arm and sword belt. A commander will be appointed by Rear Admiral Fiske to attend the commander and officers of the Natal.

SWEDISH PHYSICAL DRILLS.

System Being Established at Training Stations, Beginning With Newport.

Regarding the progress of the introduction of Swedish physical drills in the navy the Secretary of the Navy has issued this statement:

"As a substitute for the physical drill hitherto prescribed in the navy midshipmen and a number of petty officers detailed from the fleet are being trained at the Naval Academy in the Swedish system of physical training, and the same training is being established at the training stations, beginning with Newport, so that the system may be spread throughout the fleet and uniformity of instruction established and maintained.

"Officers will be the principal physical instructors. Petty officers will be needed as assistant instructors, and in order that their training may be uniform classes for their instruction also will be maintained at Annapolis in four month courses, beginning about November 1 and March 1 each year.

"A radical difference from the existing physical drill is that the new system must be taught to comparatively few men at one time, and the instructor must give constant attention to individuals to insure against careless, imperfect or incorrect performance of the various movements. The new system will be more effective to inculcate habits of greater care, control and alertness in movement, and more attentiveness, as well as increased strength and activity, so that men will not only improve in bearing and carriage, but will acquire a habit more responsive to commands."

FOR MISS HELEN GOULD.

It is announced that officers and enlisted men of the United States navy have started a fund for the purpose of giving a testimonial to Miss Helen M. Gould, who is to marry Finley J. Shepard. Rear Admiral Hugo Osterhaus, commander-in-chief of the North Atlantic squadron, issued an unofficial notice directing that the fund collected be placed in the hands of the paymaster of the Delaware. It is said that both officers and enlisted men feel deeply indebted to Miss Gould for the interest she has taken in the service and wish to present to her a token of their esteem and affection.

A notice posted on board the rear admiral's flagship, the Utah, made public the arrangement, which was to have been kept a secret until the day Miss Gould becomes a bride. It was addressed to the division commanders and commanding officers of all ships and carried the caption, "Subject:—Wedding Present, Miss Helen Gould." It was stated that at the request of chief petty officers the notice was posted. Embodied in the notice was a request that as many men as possible subscribe to the fund. Twenty-five cents each was the sum asked.

It was suggested that not so much the sum raised as the number of men whose names will appear on the list will show the appreciation of the men. The subscription is to be forwarded in a combination check to the paymaster of the Delaware not later than January 5.

The commander-in-chief suggested that a separate subscription be taken from the officers for a similar purpose and that these sums be forwarded to the same paymaster in separate checks. A committee of enlisted men and the commanding officer of the Delaware will be appointed to purchase the present for the enlisted men and have it suitably engraved and forwarded to Miss Gould. A similar committee will act for the officers.

NEW ORDER ON SEA DUTY.

Not Intended to Change Practice on Foreign Stations, But to Set Records Straight.

Many protests received by the Secretary of the Navy regarding the recent general order which revoked the order of January 30, 1902, stating that service performed in Cuba, Porto Rico, the Hawaiian Islands, Guam, the Samoan Islands and on the Asiatic station would be considered as sea service, have been answered by an explanation of the new order.

When the order was issued many of the naval officers on duty in Washington formed an opinion that the Navy Department was "gunning for somebody in the Philippines." As first construed by the officers it gave the department authorization to keep an officer in the Philippines or on other of the insular possessions for his term of shore duty and then to put him on a ship in the same waters for his tour. This apparently would enable the department to keep an officer indefinitely in the Philippines or in Cuba or in Guam. This was the question asked of the department.

Rear Admiral Philip Andrews, chief of the bureau of navigation and Acting Secretary of the Navy, has issued a statement correcting this misunderstanding. He says:

"The purpose of the original order was to count such foreign service on shore, in the Philippines and some of the other places mentioned, as a cruise or part of a cruise according to its length. There is no intention to change this practice, except for the Hawaiian Islands, which will count as shore duty. Foreign service on shore, however, is legally 'shore duty beyond the seas,' and it will be so shown in the records in compliance with law. This change cannot be made in the Navy Register for 1913, however, without too long delaying its issue, but the Navy Register for 1914 will contain a separate column for 'shore duty beyond the seas.'"

ORDERS TO NAVAL OFFICERS.

The Navy Department announces the following orders to officers:

Lieutenant (junior grade), W. G. Child, ordered to the Fore River Shipbuilding Company, Quincy, Mass., January 13.

Medical Director E. H. Green, detached from the navy recruiting station, New York, January 16, and ordered to duty as president of the board of medical examiners at Washington.

Surgeon H. D. Wilson, ordered to the navy recruiting station, Buffalo, N. Y., January 13.

Chief Gunner A. S. Mackenzie, detached from the navy yard, Philadelphia, January 2, and ordered to the Maryland.

Gardner J. K. Thompson, detached from the Maryland and ordered home and to wait orders.

MELLEN THE RESOURCEFUL.

[Boston Budget-Beacon.]

Charles S. Mellen—Mellen the aggressive—is again to the front in defense of a united railroad system for the benefit of all New England. In his masterful letter addressed to the public he confounds all critics, and lays his finger right on the source of the personally promoted campaign of defamation that has been endangering the business interests of all New England. Mr. Mellen's letter is not only forceful, logical and harmonious, but furnishes a two-column text-book from which every slander against himself, and his management of the New England railroad lines, may be answered by any one who wants truth to triumph over error.

While thunderstorms are threatening from Providence to Washington, Mellen goes calmly forward in the upbuilding of a railroad system for New England, and calls upon all interested in her expansion and development to unite with him in the slogan: "Sail From Boston; But First See New England." The response to Mr. Mellen's call has been more vigorous in the West than in New England. The agent of the Hamburg American line says his inquiries for Boston bookings from the West have been astonishing and are the result of the advertising campaigns to promote the interests of New England and the Port of Boston.

Mr. Mellen is not only aggressive, but most resourceful, and if his trumpet call to New England to sound "Haiti" in the campaign of calumny that has been promoted against New England's transportation system is heeded he will be, some day, rightfully acclaimed the captain of New England's industrial hosts.

BRITONS GAMBLE IN LOTTERIES.

[Truth.]

Most of the foreign lottery touts indulge in frigid and calculated misrepresentations regarding the real price of the tickets, the fact that payments have to be made for a whole series of drawings being concealed. One firm now on the warpath in connection with the Royal Saxon Lottery has tried the experiment of perfect frankness. They show that there are 110,000 tickets to be sold at £15 each for the five drawings. This produces a total of £1,650,000. The prizes amount to £1,040,050; and there is accordingly the tidy little sum of £609,950 for the expenses and profits of the promoters and agents of the lottery. The bulk of the money comes out of the pockets of Britons at home and in the colonies, who are the chief patrons of these foolish gambles.

WORDS FROM HOME.

Statements That May Be Investigated. Testimony of Newport Citizens.

When a Newport citizen comes to the front, telling his friends and neighbors of his experience, you can rely on his sincerity. The statements of people residing in far away places do not command your confidence. Home endorsement is the kind that backs Doan's Kidney Pills. Such testimony is convincing. Investigation proves it true. Below is a statement of a Newport resident. No stronger proof of merit can be had.

John L. Cookingham, 30 Poplar St., Newport, R. I., says: "I gladly confirm the statement I gave for publication in 1908 recommending Doan's Kidney Pills. My kidneys troubled me for some time. The kidney secretions contained sediment, and were irregular in passage, causing me annoyance. My back also ached severely. I finally used Doan's Kidney Pills, procured at Wright & Hay's Drug Store, and they gave me entire relief."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

A FACE AT NOEL.

[Edith M. Thomas, in Lippincott's.]

In my own Provence (how well I remember!),
When we all were sat at the Christmas feast,
Warm light on faces of greatest and least,
There would come a long cry outside the door,
Keen as the wind of the bleak December:
"Give to us poor from your yule-log's store!"

In my own Provence (how well I remember!)
There was one who, smiling, would rise from her seat,
And, heaping a platter with bread and meat,
With figs and fugasse, would open the door,
While in blew the wind of the bleak December,
And snow came sifting along the floor.

In my own Provence (how well I remember!)
Those at the door I never once saw—
They were God's poor, to be held in awe!
But the angel face my Mother wore,
Fronting the night and the bleak December,
Her face—how it grows on me more and more!

THE SHORTEST DAY.

Oh, wake and call me early,
Call me early, mother dear;
Tomorrow is the shortest day
Of all the short leap year.

And if I chance to drowse again,
Keep calling—do not stop;
No time to sleep at Christmastide—
I gotter go and shop.

Wake me, in spite of father—
Who tells me sharp and terse
That Christmas is the shortest day—
He knows it by his purse.

WHEN SANTA CLAUS COMES.

Merrily, merrily, merrily oh!
The reindeer prance across the snow;
We hear their tinkling silver bells,
Whose merry music softly tells
Old Santa Claus is coming.

Merrily, merrily, merrily oh!
The evergreens in the woodland grow;
They rustle gently in the breeze,
Oh, don't you think the Christmas trees
Know Santa Claus is coming?

Merrily, merrily, merrily oh!
We've hung our stockings all in a row.
Into our beds we'll softly creep,
Just shut our eyes and go to sleep
And wait—for Santa Claus is coming.

FANCIES.

He asked strange questions as a child;
To answer them they tried in vain.
With airs superior he smiled
As they endeavored to explain.
Now, full grown, with a polished brow,
He brings up "problems" strange, forsooth.
He asks more foolish questions now
Than in his very early youth.

PRIVATE AND INCORPORATED BANKS.

Untermyer and the Pujo committee could hardly have expected that J. P. Morgan would assent to the proposition that interstate corporations ought not to deposit their funds with a private banker or employ a private banker as a fiscal agent. Morgan is not only the greatest private banker in the country but one of the greatest in the world. There are few incorporated banks whose names are so well known or whose credit is so high as that of J. Pierpont Morgan, and that alone ought to have deterred Untermyer from trying to make him admit that inspection by public officials must increase the safety of financial institutions.

Why, indeed, should banks be subject to investigation and inspection more than merchants? The ready answer is that it is because people deposit their money with them, but it does not follow that these institutions ought not to stand on their own bottoms and flourish or fail according to the reputation they make for themselves.

Of course banks of issue require supervision, because it is essential to the public convenience that their notes should be current in all parts of the country. A man may be expected to know to what sort of bank he trusts his money, but he cannot be expected to know what sort of a bank it is whose notes are paid to him for his labor or his merchandise. The incorporated banks enjoy the privilege of limited liability and some others in regard to the public funds, and it is pretty generally accepted that even if they do not issue notes they should be subject to legal regulations.

Private banks with unlimited liability and with the credit due to the integrity and sagacity of their owners have as honorable a record as incorporated banks, and the official supervision over the latter notoriously does not prevent losses and even insolvencies. Where the state grants a banking charter it may properly impose conditions and exercise supervision, but that does not prove the incorporated to be any safer than the private bank. In the latter case, however, you need to know your banker.

WOMEN LOWERING THE COST OF LIVING.

The housekeepers of Philadelphia have shown that it is within the power of women to accomplish something toward the cutting of high prices. They have also demonstrated the interest of women in affairs of a public nature and their ability to make a movement of a new sort successful when they undertake it with energy and enthusiasm. The victory won by them in that city, in compelling the merchants to lower the price of eggs, is an unmistakable evidence of the fact that high prices can be reduced and that if the movement is carefully planned and well executed the men who fix these prices must meet the competition and sell at the figure set by those who are behind the effort. Every act of this sort is of personal interest to all housekeepers at present, and the many which have been made in different parts of the country have been followed with close attention in other sections suffering from the same conditions and eagerly looking for remedies.

Up to the present time, however, not very much has been done by the women of the country to try to cut down the high prices which prevail, particularly for provisions. Yet this seems to be in a large way a matter which affects especially the women, many of whom are the buyers of family supplies and most of whom have the supervision of the family larder and menu. Now they seem to be aroused to a considerable extent, through the medium particularly of the Housekeepers' League. It is fair to expect that this action by the women of Philadelphia, in forcing the merchants to reduce the price of eggs by buying large quantities and under-selling the dealers, will be followed in other places and with other articles of merchandise, and that the power of the women to regulate evils of this kind will be made evident with increasing force and frequency. That they can and will be effective in this line is indicated plainly by the result of the movement in Philadelphia.

Already indeed the women of that city, encouraged by the success attained in their initial endeavor, are planning an attack on the price of butter. If the men who have stocks of that commodity on hand are wise and take warning by what has been done through the egg crusade they will capitulate before these energetic women, who have learned the power they possess in the direction of cutting prices and breaking up corners in articles of necessity for the home and the table. It is not likely, either, that the campaign will stop with these particular food supplies, but rather that other vulnerable spots will be found at which the monopolies can be attacked with success, and so the good work will go on and the women will keep busy doing what man has not seemed able or willing to accomplish. It is an excellent object lesson given by the women of Philadelphia, and taught also by those of other cities, as to the possibility of beating the trusts and the ability of women to do that sort of work, and if men do not wish to lose some of their laurels they, too, will be busy themselves along this line.

How much real and lasting effect this action of the women in attacking the monopolies which have been boosting the prices of staple commodities will have only time will tell. There is no reason why the result should not be permanent if the crusade is continued and the men who manage these things are convinced that the women really mean business and are not simply following a fad whose existence will be but brief. It is possible, therefore, that a partial solution at least of the food price problem is in sight. Even if they should not continue the fight they have at least blazed the way for the men to follow in the contest with the trusts. The victory which they have won should be only the first in a series which will finally put to rout the enemy and show them that they cannot again return to the conditions which make it difficult for the people to secure the essentials of good living.

BASE BALL AS AN ELEVATING INFLUENCE.

It is a good while since the community has been jarred by a professor in the University of Chicago. The truth is, that institution seems to have discouraged originality. It gradually separated itself from two or three of the professors who were most given to startling the public, and it is two or three years since any member of the faculty of that institution of advanced learning has told us that the world is flat, that the sun revolves around it, or that black is white.

Yet we do not miss the silence. The president emeritus of Harvard University is doing all that is necessary to keep us from vegetating mentally. As the result of his trip around the world he thrilled the public a little while ago with the announcement that the heathen care nothing for the doctrine of the trinity or for that of the atonement. Probably not. Also, probably Dr. Eliot did not find a missionary preaching dogmatic theology, but one can hardly talk about the founder of the Christian religion without expressing some opinion of his nature and origin and of the purpose or result of his appearance in the world.

He has now demonstrated his powers of observation and generalization by saying that China is indebted more to base ball for its enlightenment and advance than to any other single influence. Of course there are persons who think foreign trade, manufactures and railroads introduced into China have done more than anything else to effect changes. Some would say that Western ideas of education were the most fruitful cause. A Chinese official said that the new republic began when Dr. Morrison, the first missionary, reached the country, a little more than a century ago. All these are the opinions of persons who lack the insight and the broad grasp of a man who stands at the head of American intellectual life and whose whole career has been identified with the oldest and in many respects the foremost of our universities. Such a man casting a glance over China in a rather rapid trip around the world sees that trade, education and Christianity are all secondary to base ball as a renovating influence in the Celestial Empire.

Some one has cornered the cheese market in the West. In Wisconsin, where there has been an increase in the number of factories and an undiminished output, the sales have been nearly 7,000,000 pounds short of those in 1910 and half as much less than the production in 1911. The trusts, it is said, have taken the cheese out of the market by purchases from the factories before it reached the sales boards.

Turkey is apparently up to her old trick in trying to hoodwink the representatives of the powers at the peace conference, making demands which no one is inclined to grant and which she could not secure if the war were continued. But she is likely to fail, as those who have done the fighting do not propose to lose any of the fruits of their victory. The European powers are apparently tired of yielding to the Turks, and more than ever inclined to give the allies the full advantage of their hard-earned successes.

The termination, January 1, of the Russian treaty, abrogated by Congress because of Russia's attitude on the passport question, will leave that country and the United States for the first time in 80 years without an agreement to govern their trade relations. It is not expected, however, that the termination of the treaty will seriously affect commerce except as Russia may change certain tariff laws.

One immigrant who landed in New York Sunday will not be deported because of lack of funds. When asked by the officials to name the amount he had on his person he drew from his pockets $7,000 in cash, a check for $2,800 and $40,000 in securities. He is bound for South Dakota as a settler, and ought to make a good citizen.

Sleep is not only nature's sweet restorer, but may be harmful. A Viennese physician makes the discovery that too much sleep causes diseases as menacing to comfort as over-eating and much more dangerous to life itself. This is indeed a discovery.

There is apparently still much Christmas shopping to be completed, in spite of the efforts to have it all done early.

There may yet be snow for Christmas.

PORTSMOUTH.

Large Gathering at Friends' Meeting House for Funeral of Mrs. Albert W. Lawrence.

[Regular correspondence of The News.]

The funeral of Mrs. Cordelia Lawrence, wife of Mr. Albert W. Lawrence, took place at the Friends' meeting house Sunday afternoon. The gathering was very large, filling all the lower part of the house, with about 40 in the gallery, the number being estimated at 300. Boston, Cambridge, Fall River, New Bedford, Dighton, Milford, Saylesville, Newport, Swansea, Tiverton, Providence and Bristol were represented.

The service was conducted by Rev. James M. Estes, pastor of the church, who read several selections, offered prayer and preached a short sermon from two texts, Revelation XIV:13 and Psalms CXVI:15. The remains were in a light grey casket, lined with choice flowers, and covered with floral emblems, and at the foot was a tall mound of set pieces reaching to the top of an altar chair. The Friends' Missionary Society gave a handsome piece and some of the flowers came from far away.

The bearers were her brother, Frederick W. Holman; her brother-in-law, Charles L. Freeborn, and two cousins, Richard R. Macomber and Alfred H. Borden. The interment was in the Holman family lot in the Union cemetery.

Among those present from out of town were Mr. and Mrs. Ellsworth Sisson and their daughter and Richard Holman of Providence, Mrs. Lansen and child and Miss Lena Briggs of Dighton, John Perkins and family of New Bedford, Louis Brown and family of Newport, Dr. C. D. Albro of Milford, Mrs. John Hambly of Cambridge, Mr. and Mrs. John Hargraves of Fall River, Mr. and Mrs. H. Clay Osborn and Mrs. Gifford of Tiverton, Mrs. Harry Manchester of Saylesville, Mrs. John S. Kimber, Mrs. A. L. Ackley, Winfield S. Sisson, Mrs. Addie Northup, Mrs. Anna Manchester, and Mr. and Mrs. Harry L. DeBlois of Newport; Mrs. Charles Chace and Mr. and Mrs. Henry DeBlois of Swansea and Mr. and Mrs. Levi Almy of Bristol.

Rev. Anson B. Howard of St. Paul's Church met his people Sunday morning for the first time after his ordination as rector. He took as his text Matthew, 7:13.

The Christmas celebration of the Friends' Church, which was to have been held at the town hall this evening, has been postponed to New Year's in respect to the memory of Mrs. Albert W. Lawrence.

At a special meeting of the school board, called to consider the request of the long-time teachers for an increase of salary, it was decided that the request could not be granted, as the money in sight would scarcely go through the year. The sum of $1,700 is paid yearly for the pupils attending high schools out of town.

Mr. Edwin Loucks, a student at Tilbodeau's College, is spending the mid-year vacation with his father, Rev. Albert Loucks.

Mrs. Martha Eddy went to Brooklyn Saturday, to be guest of her brother and wife, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Edie.

Mr. and Mrs. Arnold Spink are spending Christmas week with their daughter, Mrs. Nelson Charlton, and Mr. Charlton at Warwick.

Mr. I. Lincoln Sherman has several men on the lookout for the brown-tail and gypsy moth, hoping, by giving the matter close attention thus early, to retard the spread of the pests.

Mr. Roy H. Borden of Dartmouth College has arrived to spend the Christmas holidays with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Alfred H. Borden.

Mr. Ray Borden of Brown University is spending Christmas week with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Alonzo E. Borden.

Mr. Cyrus Estes of the Moses Brown School will spend his fortnight's vacation with his parents, Rev. and Mrs. James M. Estes.

Miss Harriet Wheeler, teacher at New Rochelle, N. Y., is spending her fortnight's vacation with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Wilbur C. Wheeler, at Bristol Ferry.

Mrs. Fredrick Eldredge of Mystic, Conn., has been spending a week with her sisters, Mrs. Walter A. Sowle and Mrs. Peckham of Georgia, who is also visiting Mrs. Sowle.

A MILITANT MISSIONARY.

Rev. Samuel Zwemer, Islam's Most Formidable Individual Adversary.

[William T. Ellis, in the Century.]

Sheer and unadorned simplicity marks the character and equipment of Islam's most formidable individual adversary, Rev. Samuel M. Zwemer, D. D. He presents a contrasted picture of a lone knight errant who has become leader of a hope no longer forlorn. Twenty years ago he was only one more of "those missionaries," a big-boned, somewhat crude Dutchman from the wilds of Michigan, barking straight from Hope College and New Brunswick Seminary to Arabia, where he opened the Arabian mission of the Dutch Reformed Church. The zest for daring hard things must have been in the blood, for he was born to the puritanism of a Calvinistic clergyman's home. While yet a student, he joined issue with the commonly accepted idea of the missionary folk that it is in vain to attempt missions among the Moslems of Arabia. The romance of the desert had cast its spell upon his imagination. Then was born in his heart that great passion to win Islam for the cross.

He learned to know Arabia at first hand, being stationed at Bosru, Bahrein and elsewhere, having crossed the Oman peninsula and having twice penetrated into Yemen and into Hassa. His zeal was imparted to others, and the mission that he began has steadily grown until at the present time the University of Michigan, in co-operation with the Dutch Reformed Church, is maintaining missons at various points in Arabia. Zwemer's own brother was one of his recruits, and his life was sacrificed to the cause.

It has sometimes seemed to persons who have heard Zwemer's terrific indictments of Islam before great audiences of men that his militancy partook somewhat of the nature of a personal vendetta. He has reason to have a blood feud with the followers of the prophet. I openly taxed him with this one day, but the idea seemed new to him. He mused over it quizzically for a minute, as if an introspection, and then he slowly shook his head and said: "I don't think so. I want to help the Moslems." Certainly he has made sacrifices for them to a point that the world would count quixotic. Although only 45 years old, he has worked harder, traveled farther and drunk more deeply of life than most world citizens. He has looked death in the eyes without blinking. His courage is the courage of experience, and not of ignorance.

While still a private in the missionary ranks, he organized the first conference of Christian missionaries, among Moslems, held at Cairo in 1906. He was the leader in the work of the Edinburgh missionary conference upon the subject of Islam. He planned and led the third conference upon Moslem missions, held in Lucknow a little less than two years ago. These conferences have been real councils of war, and in recent years their influence has tinged the books, newspapers, sermons and conventions of all Christendom. Before this he had spent a term in America as student volunteer secretary, and nearly all the institutions of higher learning in this country have heard his plea for the Moslem world. The militant note in his address touched a responsive chord in the hearts of young men, and there are scores of workers in the foreign mission field who can say, "Zwemer sent me here."

HOW AND WHERE TO SLEEP.

[Evening Wisconsin.]

The American or the European, in order to get a good night's rest, ordinarily requires a soft pillow under his head, but the Japanese stretches himself on a rush mat on the floor, puts a hard, square block of wood under his head, and does not sleep well if he does not have it. In China the beds are very low, scarcely rising from the floor, but are often carved exquisitely of wood. Like the Japanese, the Chinese never makes his bed any softer than is possible by the use of rush mats.

People in northern countries do not appear to be able to sleep well unless they have lots of room in which to stretch their legs, but inhabitants of the tropics often curl themselves up like monkeys at the lower angle of a suspended hammock and sleep very soundly.

The robust American will cover himself with a pair of blankets and throw his window open to the air even in the dead of winter, and sometimes he will not complain if there is a bit of snow on the window sill in the morning. The Russian, on the contrary, likes no sleeping place so well as the top of his big soapstone stove in his dwelling. Crawling out of this blistering bed in the morning, he delights in taking a plunge in a cold stream, even if he breaks through the ice to do it.

In Lapland the native crawls, head and all, into a bag made of reindeer skin, and sleeps warm and comfortable within it. The East Indian, at the other end of the world, also has a sleeping bag, but it is more porous than the Laplander's. Its purpose is to keep out the mosquitoes rather than to keep its occupants warm.

RUN OVER BY HIS OWN WAGON.

John McDonald Falls Under the Wheels and Dies from Injuries.

Deaths of Councilman Richard D. Graham, John W. Dunwell and Edgar Barker.

John McDonald, temporarily employed by Ernst Voigt as a driver, met his death Sunday afternoon in a peculiar manner. He and another driver, Thomas Feeney, were carting seaweed to "Maplehurst Farm" and with heavy loads had finally reached the lot in which the seaweed was to be spread. The horses were stopped and Mr. McDonald was removing the seat, preparatory to unloading, when he must have dropped the seat on the horses, perhaps because he slipped and fell. At any rate the horses started from a dead stop, McDonald fell to the ground and one of the rear wheels passed over his body.

Driver Feeney was right alongside with his loaded wagon, Martin Ford, who has charge of the farm, was in an adjoining field, and Mr. Voigt was in the barn. All rushed to the aid of the injured driver when the alarm was given that he was in danger. The horses had started to run and were stopped and the injured man was wrapped in blankets and made as comfortable as possible.

Notice was telephoned to a physician, who visited the farm and made an examination of McDonald. He said no bones were broken, but he was probably hurt internally. He was placed in one of the light farm wagons, suitably propped up in blankets, and taken to the hospital, but expired soon after arriving there.

Just how the deceased came to fall is a mystery to the others who were there. It seems likely that in removing the seat it was accidentally dropped on the horses, which started, throwing McDonald; or he may have slipped on a piece of seaweed with similar results. Mr. McDonald was about 37 years of age, unmarried and the son of Mr. Dennis McDonald, for many years gardener for Mrs. Slater. He had been a driver all his life, having worked for many men and was considered competent and careful.

Councilman Richard D. Graham died Sunday night at the Newport Hospital, from double pneumonia. He was taken ill a week ago and was taken to the hospital Monday. His condition since had been such as to give his friends fears of a fatal result, so that the news that he had passed away was not unexpected by those who had kept in touch with his condition.

"Dick" is what all his friends called him, and he had many of them, being of a quiet and cheerful disposition. He was twice elected to the Representative Council, the last time at the recent election. For many years he was in the Foresters, a member of Court Friendship, and much interested in the work of the order. He was a member of the new Land's End Lodge of Moose, and of its degree team, and secretary of the Bartenders' Union. He married a daughter of the late James Horgan, who survives him. His mother, Mrs. Abby Graham, is also living.

John W. Dunwell, a well known resident of the Point section of the city, died at his home on Bridge street early Sunday morning, after a short illness. He was at work Saturday and returned to his home at 3 o'clock in the afternoon, complaining of a severe cold. Failing rapidly, he died shortly after midnight.

Mr. Dunwell was born in Newport in 1837, a son of the late George Dunwell, and like many of the young men of the Point was engaged for several years in fishing. Later he took up carpentering and worked at his trade for the Old Colony Steamboat Company and the New England Navigation Company.

He is survived by a widow, a sister, Mrs. William Honeywell and a granddaughter, Miss Gladding.

Going out too soon after an attack of grip is said to be responsible for the death of Edgar Barker, at his boarding place at Hugh J. Campbell's on Thames street, Sunday morning. In addition, he suffered with bronchitis and the heart was affected by these troubles when he took a little cold. At an early hour Mr. Campbell heard a fall in Mr. Barker's room, and going there found him in an unconscious condition on the floor. He notified the police and then in turn the city physician. When the latter arrived he found the man dead and in turn called the medical examiner. Heart failure was given as the direct cause of death.

Sachem Edward H. Ball of Weenat Shassit Tribe of Red Men was sent for and went in search of relatives. Finally he found Mrs. Jonathan Kinsley of Sheffield avenue, an aunt, who took charge of the affairs of the deceased. Barker was by profession a driver, and while of late he has been working for J. K. Sullivan he was for years employed at Stewart's stables and has driven for one or two business houses as well.

MEETS WITH A MISHAP.

Steamer Priscilla Breaks Port Shaft While Still in the East River at New York.

Sunday afternoon, while on her way to this city, and while still in the East river at New York, steamer Priscilla met with a mishap. Her port shaft broke close to the crank shaft and she had power only on one side. A passing tug gave her a line and with the aid of her good wheel she went back to her dock. The passengers were sent on by rail.

Notice was sent at once to the repair shops here and men were assembled to make steamer Commonwealth ready to take her place on the line. The Commonwealth was held as a reserve boat since coming in, while the Plymouth was being outfitted with lifeboats. Some of the officers of the Priscilla, and the passengers bound for Newport, arrived on the General at 1 this morning and the steward's force came on the 1 o'clock trip. Captain Whiting and the crew of the Mohawk came down to take the Commonwealth to Fall River, where more of her crew will join her. She will leave for New York tonight, and will run until the Plymouth is ready to take her place on the line. This she is expected to do about January 1.

The Priscilla will be towed here to have her new shaft put in. The shaft is at the repair shop yard and there will be plenty of time to put it in. The break, being far inboard, gave the wheel a solid support, so that there was no shock when the accident took place.

The promptness with which the Commonwealth goes on the line, ready for duty, shows how well the officials are attending to these matters.

SAVED BY STREET SWEEPER.

Charles Firnges Rescues Little Fellow on Thames Street, Who Darted in Front of a Machine.

Charles Firnes, the street sweeper on Thames street near The News office, proved this afternoon that he has his head about him and can act in an emergency. A lad about four years of age, too small to be left alone, was left alone with his sister, only just older than he. The mother was in a store and the boy darted out on the pavement and right in front of a big automobile which was being driven through the street.

The driver saw the lad and stopped, but not before he had passed where the lad had been. Firnges had acted in the very brief interval. He dropped his broom and had the little fellow out of danger. It was a clever piece of work and every one who saw it, including the driver of the automobile, was relieved to think some one was able to do it.

LOCAL BREEFS.

—Mr. W. G. Stockwell has gone home to Fitchburg, Mass., for Christmas.

—Mr. Hugh L. Taylor is here from Washington to spend Christmas with his sister.

—Miss Helen Sullivan is here from Wellesley to spend Christmas with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. K. Sullivan.

—Mr. J. R. Conahay will leave tonight for Easton, Pa., to join Mrs. Conahay and spend Christmas with her and her parents.

—General Superintendent Siebel of the Bay State Street Railway was in town today, but said he had nothing now to advance for the benefit of Newport.

—The restaurant at the Army and Navy Young Men's Christian Association will close December 31 until the return of the ships, there being little demand for it at this time.

—Mr. Lyman C. Josselyn was operated upon at the Newport Hospital Sunday morning for a serious bone affection, back of the ear. His condition is as favorable as could be expected.

—Mrs. Frank M. Greenlaw is in Auburndale, Mass. Her mother, Mrs. Joseph W. Cookson, who had been critically ill for several weeks following an attack of pneumonia, died Sunday.

—The Sunshine Society is active today, finishing up the Christmas work. Several of the members were busy in the rooms at Trinity guild hall this morning, sending out messengers to deliver gifts to be distributed.

—Mr. Thomas Donohue, who has been gate keeper at Elm street and Mr. Jeremiah O'Leary, who has been assistant gatekeeer at both Elm and Poplar streets, announce that they are candidates for re-election. Both seem to have given satisfaction during the past year.

—Three barges of coal arrived this morning for local yards—Almy, Perry and D. J. Sullivan & Co. Tug Solicitor brought them in and then Captain O'Neill found the boiler was in need of repairs, so she went to the repair shops to be put in condition for Christmas. The repairs will be completed Tuesday.

—At the high mass at St. John's Church Christmas morning the music will include the Kyrie from Schubert's Mass in G and the Credo, Sanctus, Benedictus Agnus Dei and Gloria by Eyre in E flat. Mr. Ray Groff will assist as violinist. The music will be under the direction of Mr. Otto James, organist and choir director.

—There must have been some Christmas shopping Saturday afternoon and evening, judging by the people seen on the streets and the bundles they carried. The lights did not fail and the storekeepers had no occasion to grumble. There are still left two nights and one day. Things are lively on the streets today.

—A musical program was rendered in the Young Men's Christian Association lobby Sunday afternoon, which included selections on the xylophone, violin, piano, bells and flute, by W. E. Patrick, W. A. Muttland and W. E. Patrick, Jr. Afterwards General Secretary Chapin gave a talk on the significance of Christmas before the open fireplace.

—Mrs. Rhett of Philadelphia and Jamestown, widow of Dr. Henry J. Rhett, who has purchased through the agency of the Clarence A. Hammett Company the Edes house, corner of Kay and Everett streets, it is understood, proposes to make this her permanent home and no longer spend the winters in Philadelphia and the summers at Jamestown.

—Division No. 1, Ancient Order of Hibernians, attended the early mass at St. Augustin's Church Sunday morning, and Division No. 2 the early service at St. Joseph's, to receive Communion. Both turned out with full ranks. The Father Mathew Society attended at St. Mary's with an unusually large number; so many, in fact, that all the seats in the centre aisle were taken.

—The Board of Aldermen will meet this evening, so that city employes and officials may have a little more money for Christmas. The weekly pay rolls ordinarily approved Thursday and paid Saturday will be approved and the city treasurer will be ready to pay them Tuesday instead of Saturday. The usual monthly pay rolls will also be ready Tuesday, so that the city treasurer's office will be the most popular in the City Hall.

—The receipts from the sale of Red Cross Christmas seals Saturday were $22.39, which is by far the biggest day this season. The sum of $8.15 was received in donations, from people who did not trouble to take the stamps. Those in charge Saturday were Misses Cornelia Thomas, Helen Powell, Mary K. Akerly and Anna K. Bogren and Masters Barnett Sisson, and Archie Mitchell, the last-named representing the Boy Scouts.

—Mr. Fred James Bradley, a well known elocutionist in and about Boston, addressed the Mt. Zion Literary Association Sunday afternoon. The feature of his appearance was his readings by Shakespeare, Shelley and Dunbar, the latter being especially applauded. Selections were also given by Miss Effie Johnson, who sang and Miss Edith Buchanan and Mrs. Octavio Dash, who furnished piano numbers.

—Some of the fishermen came in this morning and there is fresh fish in the market. Captain Jim Kelley in the Priscilla arrived from off Nantucket with 2,800 pounds of cod and haddock. He is the first in from there, but the other boats are expected today or tomorrow. Other boats in today are Captain Henry Monson of the Alice with 1,400 pounds, Captain Papa of the Rob Roy with 600, Captain King with 700 pounds.

CARRIERS OVERWHELMED.

With Wagons, Motorcycles and Bicycles Handling the Christmas Rush.

Deluge of Incoming and Outgoing Mail and Large Extra Force at Work.

Nearly half a hundred persons, with numerous wagons, motorcycles and bicycles, are struggling with the Christmas postoffice rush. As if the usual pressure were not sufficient, a corporation has dumped in an unhandy lot of advertising matter for immediate delivery. It was nearly noon when some of the carriers left the office, an donce over most of the routes will be about all that will be accomplished today. The deliveries usually begin at 5:30, but with the great mount of mail to be sorted and the insufficient room in the office to handle such a mass of material it was hours later before the men could think of leaving.

Superintendent of Carriers Lee had all the substitutes on, and as soon as the first-class matter could be sorted these men were sent out with it through the business sections, so that the stores were not much delayed in receiving their mail. Four men were put on the business section of Thames street and in this way cleaned up the district in short order, and then returned to the office to help out on other districts. The regular carriers in to the office to help out in other districts. The regular carriers in the the meantime were routing out their quantities of packages and more than one was obliged to send to a stable for a wagon, in which to haul his portion.

Since Saturday noon, when the carriers last made a delivery, there has been a constant incoming of matter. 70 sacks having arrived Sunday morning and this morning 48, in addition to what came in between times. The office was actually choked up, and even will the carriers' lounging room and the offices of the assistant postmaster and superintendent of carriers turned over for routing purposes, and the use of every available bit of floor space, it was next to impossible to put the matter in proper form to take out. Sorting tables and racks convenienced only letters and cards.

On the dispatching end, too, the office is nearly snowed under, and while at the stamp window there is a rush of people having packages weighed and buying stamps the sub-stations are sending in packages in five to ten-bushel lots. As usual many of the parcels are poorly done up and the stamp "Received in Damaged Condition" is being over-worked while quantities of articles which have slipped out of their wrappers are being held for claimants.

The Christmas post cards are much in evidence, and these are being handled by thousands. Many of them will never be delivered, because they cannot go through the mails, being barred by the postal laws. Tinsel and frosted cards are the principal offenders in this respect, and those who have sent such to their friends without enclosing them in envelopes may make up their minds that they have wasted both the price of the cards and the postage, for all these are held up at the office, as dead matter.

The pressure at the office this year seems to be the greatest ever, but after things are cleared up (Wednesday) if it is possible to do so, it is a foregone conclusion that none of the office force will feel as if they had much Christmas cheer, for they will be so worn out that rest will be their one desire. At present they live in hopes that they will have fair weather for the completion of the strenuous work, as rain or snow will make their efforts tiresome.

LOOKS LIKE CHRISTMAS.

Army and Navy Y. M. C. A. Decorated With Greens—Men Attend Bible Class and Church Service.

"Say, Harry, it looks like Christmas around at the Army and Navy Young Men's Christian Association. I was talking with one of the secretaries Sunday, and he told me that Mrs. H. L. DeBlois had given enough money to purchase several wreathes and Christmas trees. They have the wreathes in the windows and the trees in the lobby. Just as soon as you open the front door you can smell those trees, and it makes a fellow think of Christmas.

"I strolled over to the building Saturday evening to see the moving picture show, but, as there was a meet on up in the gymnasium, between the men from the Training Station, Torpedo Station and Fort, the 'movies' were postponed until next Saturday evening.

"I had liberty Sunday and attended the Bible class at 4:30 and had a fine time. Lincke, a yeoman led the singing, while another fellow played the piano. At 6 o'clock classes were formed and I surely did enjoy the lesson, as the one in charge told us about the birth of Jesus.

"At 7:15 I attended the service at the Second Baptist Church with the fellows, and after the meeting was over the crowd marched back to the building and we were all introduced to a fine luncheon. We were told that the women of the Second Baptist Church had provided all the 'eats.' If you would care to go along next Sunday, meet me at the building at 4 P. M."

IN HONOR OF CHRISTMAS.

arols at Thames Street Methodist Church—Walter Lowrie Club Services.

At the Thames Street Methodist piscopal Church Sunday evening the nnual Christmas carol service was eld, which was one of story and ong, entitled "In Quest of the King." he church was attractive in laurel emmings and red bells, and the atendance completely filled the edifice. he story was read by Rev. William arvey Bath, and was illustrated with tereoptican slides in charge of Mr. dmund Slocum. The songs were iven during the course of the story, hen the lights were turned on, by a all chorus choir, assisted by the chool with Miss Marian Dowling at he organ and violin obligatos by Mr. ohn Hodgson. The soloists were Misses Maud Sisson; Alice Maitland nd Florence Barker and Messrs. Harry Maitland and Vernon Tallman.

The Walter Lowrie Club service at he Newport Asylum Sunday was in harge of Vice President F. W. King, who distributed Christmas cards. Mr. Wilbor, and his genial assistant, Charles," had spent hours of hard work, as a result of which the assembly room was looking handsome in a profusion of Christmas greens. The big Christmas tree comes in next, to be ready for Thursday night, when a jolly Christmas entertainment is to be given under supervision of the club.

At the Walter Lowrie Club chapel here were pretty decorations by President E. O. M. King, who also was busy as "feast committee." Educational Secretary Ross of the Army and Navy came with some sailors, and made the address, prayer being offered by Rev. Professor William Brenton Greene, Jr., D. D. Mr. Ross found himself in front of a score of neighborhood boys, who sang for him. Refreshments were served.

FATALLY INJURED.

Young Chicago Child Struck by Dr. Roller's Automobile.

CHICAGO, Dec. 23.—An automobile owned and driven by Dr. H. F. Roller, the wrestler, struck and fatally injured Mary Kurnicki, eight years old, here last night. Dr. Roller was driving Mrs. Meriweather to the home of a family of poor children, where she intended to leave a box of toys as a Christmas remembrance. Near their destination the little girl tried to run across the street, in front of the machine, but was hurled to one side. The child was taken to a hospital, but she died in a short time.

AT FEDERAL PRISON.

Christmas Spirit Expected to Hold Full Sway in Atlanta.

ATLANTA, Ga., Dec. 23.—The Christmas spirit will hold full sway behind the gates of the federal prison here Wednesday, if the expectations of prison authorities are fulfilled. A turkey dinner, at which 912 covers—one for each inmate—will be laid, will be accompanied by a "cabaret," in which the prison band and a number of talented soloists among the prisoners will participate.

CHICAGO'S CHRISTMAS.

Expenditures Will Make It Most Prosperous in City's History.

CHICAGO, Dec. 23.—Chicago's Christmas this year it is estimated will cost about $20,000,000, making it the most prosperous in the history of the city. For gifts, including toys, it is figured that $15,000,000 will be spent. Dinners, wines, liquors and tobacco are expected to add about $1,500,000, while the remainder will be made up in gifts of employers to their employes. Merchants declare that prosperity appears to be general, nearly every one having money and spending it without complaint, regardless of the fact that prices are generally higher than a year ago.

NAVAL NOTES.

Collier Sterling, which is to convey the naval aeroplanes and equipment to the winter camp at Guantanamo bay, Cuba, will arrive at Annapolis December 28. Ensign G. de C. Chevalier and First Lieutenant B. L. Smith, marine corps, will proceed with the camp outfit on board the Sterling, about December 28. Lieutenant J. H. Towers, in charge of the camp, together with Lieutenant P. N. L. Bellinger, Ensign V. D. Herbster, Ensign W. D. Billingsley, and First Lieutenant A. A. Cunningham, marine corps, will proceed on board vessels of the Atlantic fleet about January 5.

The two fuel oil carrying vessels authorized by the last session of Congress have been named the Kanawha and the Maumee. The Secretary of the Navy in an endeavor to find suitable names for these vessels decided to give them Indian names of rivers flowing through oil regions. The Kanawha river flows through West Virginia and the Maumee through Ohio.

Transport Prairie has arrived at Colon. She will embark the United States marines, who saw recent service in Nicaragua, and proceed immediately for the United States.

Torpedo boat destroyer Balch was launched Saturday from the Cramp shipyard, Philadelphia. Miss Grace Balch of Washington, a descendant of Commodore Balch of the navy, christened the vessel. The destroyer is 300 fet long, 31 feet beam and the contract calls for a speed of 30 knots an hour.

INDEPENDENCE BILL OPPOSED.

Army Men Say Philippines Should be Retained by the United States.

Sulzer "Second to the President"—Holiday Recess of Congress—Indians Victimized.

[Washington correspondence of The News.]

WASHINGTON, Dec. 21.—Of course it will be a waste of time to try and pass the Jones bill declaring for Philippine independence at this session of Congress. Even if the bill could get through the Senate it would be promptly vetoed by President Taft. However, there has been enough discussion of the subject since Congress convened to show that there are many Democrats who are much in earnest regarding the Philippines and who will work industriously when the Democrats take complete control of the government to provide for separating the Philippines from this country. When the time comes to put such a measure through Congress we will probably have a stirring debate, which will include fighting over the Spanish war and will also show what has been accomplished by the United States in the faraway islands.

Almost the entire army, although it has suffered hardships in the Philippines, will oppose independence for the Filipinos and particularly the giving up of control. For a long time the army had little use for the Filipinos or for the Asiatic possessions, but all that has changed. Scarcely an army officer who has given any attention to the subject but says that the islands should be retained for the good which the United States is doing the whole people.

Senator Jim Reed of Missouri recently said that Congressman Sulzer has been elected to an office second to the President of the United States in importance. It means that the chief magistrate of the Empire State is the second officer in the land. There was a time when the Speaker was considered the second in importance, but the attempt at reform of procedure in the House has shorn the Speaker of a part of his power and transferred it to the chairman of the committee on ways and means. But no matter what the relative importance of the offices of the government may be it is a fact that Sulzer has been about the most important figure in Washington since the present session began. He has now left the city, not to return until he has actually become governor of New York.

Congressman Sulzer's last advice to his Democratic colleagues was to take care of the army and navy. He spoke in no uncertain terms when he counselled the building of three battleships by the present session of Congress in order to keep pace with the needs of the navy and insure the peace of the United States. Sulzer was an earnest advocate of two battleships in the last session, but his colleagues overruled him.

prefer to have a short holiday recess in preference to extending the session in the summer," remarked a man who does not know Congress. In the first place the average Congressman in the winter never sees the necessity or even the possibility of a late session in the summer. He knows there is no need of it. And, more than that, this holiday recess time is a custom, going back as far as any one can remember. Plans are made long ahead for the recess period. Even if Congress should refuse to adjourn or failed to adjourn—as once was the case, because President Cleveland warned it to remain in session—it accomplishes nothing, because there is no quorum present. The holiday recess is an institution just as much as the reading of the journal and other formal matters."

Every year when the Indian appropriation bill comes before Congress there is fresh evidence that "Lo, the poor Indian," continues to be the victim of men who are constantly looking for "easy snarks." It seems rather strange that with all the care exercised in protecting the people in the Philippines, governing Porto Rico, protectorating in Cuba, handling Santo Domingo finances, etc., our officials neglect the real "wards of the nation," although from the fact that so much attempted legislation is undertaken in their behalf it is recognized that we should care for the Indians. "Robbing Injuns" seems to be considered a kind of legitimate business in the Indian country.

I never see former Congressman Boutell that I do not think of the "ultimate consumer." During the hearings on the Payne tariff bill his inquiries always led up to the "ultimate consumer," but the legislation apparently has not been satisfactory to Boutell's friend. Boutell is now minister to Switzerland.

SOUGHT REFUGE IN A TREE.

Port Antonio Boy Rescued by the Foxton Hall Off Jamaica.

NEW YORK, Dec. 23.—"There's a cocoanut tree drifting ahead off the port bow. I do believe there's a human being in it."

In the track of the recent West Indian hurricane, while steamer Foxton Hall was passing debris of the storm 60 miles off the Jamaican coast, the vessel's first officer made this discovery and was so sure of it that he sent a lifeboat to the tree. Half an hour later the boat crew was lifting a half-conscious, half-clad pickaninny from its branches. The lad called himself "Willie Gee." He was a beach comber at Port Antonio. When the hurricane came he sought refuge in a deserted hut, but with it he was blown to sea. He swam to the cocoa tree where he drank milk from its nuts and finally exhausted, fell asleep in its branches. He believed he floated for two days.

The little fellow is now on the Foxton hall, which is discharging its cargo in Brooklyn, but Christmas day the steamer will start back with him to his home. A button on his shirt when he was found was one an American had given. "Kiss me," it read, "because I'm sterilized."

BALKAN DIFFICULTIES APPROACHING SOLUTION.

Austria Says It is Result of Servia's Action.

Re-Victualling of Adrianople Not Insisted Upon by Turkish Delegates.

LONDON, Dec. 23.—A further relaxation of the international tension was brought about today when Austria-Hungary informed the other European powers that she considers that the Balkan difficulties are approaching a solution. This, she says, is the result of Servia's action in apologizing to Austria-Hungary for the incident connected with the treatment of the Austro-Hungarian consul at Prisrind, and also her acceptance of the proposed arrangement to give her port facilities on the Adriatic sea without territorial possession.

Besides these assurances from Vienna, another helpful factor in the situation was the audience given today by Emperor Francis Joseph to the new Servian minister M. Javanovitch, when both expressed the hope for a speedy re-establishment of complete friendship between Vienna and Belgrade.

The peace conference resumed its sittings at St. James Palace this afternoon. The plenipotentiaries of Bulgaria, Servia, Montenegro, Greece and Turkey arrived in the picture gallery of the palace at exactly 4 o'clock. The envoys remained together for only a short time. Their discussion lasted not quite an hour and a half. The next session of the peace conference will be held Saturday morning.

The Turkish delegates did not insist today on the re-victualling of the fortress of Adrianople, Stojan Novakovitch, ex-premier of Servia, who presided over the meeting, presented the peace conditions of the Balkan allies and the Turkish delegates stated that they would require time to consider the proposal.

The discussion, according to M. Novakovitch, presiding officer of the conference, was "fairly arable" and the plenipotentiaries separated hopeful that next Saturday reunion would produce something more definite.

An official communication issued after the session had been taken said: "The Ottoman delegates having declared that, according to their instructions, they had no objection to treating with the delegates of the allies, including the Hellenic delegates, the allies presented their principal proposals. The Ottoman delegates reserved their reply for the next sitting."

THE INTERNATIONAL MATCHES.

Many Foreign Countries to be Represented at Camp Perry.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 23.—It is expected that 22 foreign countries will be represented by rifle teams in the international matches at Camp Perry, Ohio, in September next, immediately following the national rifle matches at that camp. Amendments of the rules are contemplated to permit the participation of teams now barred because of their high record in preceding matches.

PROBATE COURT.

In the probate court this morning an exemplified copy of the will and probate thereof of Robert Lenox Kennedy was ordered filed and recorded. Notice was waived and letters of administration on the estate of Isaac Rice, 3d., were granted to Claudine H. Rice. The petition to issue a commission to take depositions of witnesses of the will of Theodore W. Phinney was granted. Permission was granted to sell personal property of Emma Francis at public or private sale. Inventories of the estates of Emeline B. Smith and Emma Francis were ordered recorded.

The first and final account of the executors of the estate of William Rogers Morgan was continued for further hearing. Petitions for administration on the estate of Emily A. Ferrent and for consideration of the first and final account with the estate of George W. Fisher were continued to December 30.

ATTEMPT TO MURDER THE VICEROY OF INDIA.

followed the bomb throwing. He was hurriedly removed to a hospital. Lady Hardinge was unhurt, but was much shaken by the experience. The bomb was a very powerful one.

Baron Hardinge on arrival at the hospital was at once examined by the surgeons. They found that the wound in his shoulder is only a slight one. Lady Hardinge suffered from shock and it was found necessary to apply soothing remedies.

Besides the viceroy's parasol bearer, who was killed, another attendant was seriously wounded by fragments of the bomb.

The ceremonies were interrupted for only a short period, while the viceroy and the vicereine were being conveyed to the hospital and vice regal residence respectively. Sir Guy Fleetwood Wilson, financial member of the council of the governor general of took the viceroy's place in the procession which then proceeded on its way through the new imperial city to the Durbar camp, where a great number of rajahs and other Indian chieftains were gathered. Sir Guy then took up his position in front of the dais and read a despatch from Baron Hardinge, saying that he was only slightly injured by the missile thrown by a fanatic. The reading of the message was received with prolonged cheering.

The attempt on Baron Hardinge's life aroused feelings of intense indignation among both the natives and the British officials present, as he is one of the most popular viceroys who have ever ruled in India.

For a long period there had been a lull in the native agitation in India, which has at various times led to assassinations of high officials. The attack on Baron Hardinge, therefore, came with greater unexpectedness. Only a short time ago Baron Hardinge wrote to the India office in London, saying the country was very quiet and the prospects for his official entry into Delhi were favorable.

The bomb was thrown as the great procession, in which were a large number of gally caparisoned elephants bearing native princes and high British officials, was passing through the Chandal Chowk, which is a long, narrow, typical Oriental street. The houses are mostly one-story buildings. A line of street cars runs the whole length of the Chandal Chowk, but owing to the importance of today's procession the service had been suspended.

The viceroy's elephant was an enormous animal. The driver sat between his ears, guiding him in the usual native way, by tapping him on the forehead with a steel spike. Behind the driver was the great howdah, a box-like construction fixed on the elephant's saddle. In it were seated the viceroy and vicereine and at their backs stood another native attendant, holding over their heads a great parasol, which indicates the royal dignity.

Owing to the lowness of the houses in the Chandal Chowk, the would-be assassin stood on one of the roofs when he threw the bomb and was only a few feet from the viceroy and vicereine. The bomb burst with terrific force. The parasol bearer was blown from his position to the ground and instantly killed, while the driver, sitting in front of the howdah, was wounded in no fewer than eight places.

The escape of Baron and Lady Hardinge was really a miraculous one. The missile fell only a foot or two from its target.

The great procession came to a standstill and a crowd of officials rushed up and found the viceroy bleeding and pale, while the vicereine was terribly shaken. They were assisted to alight from the howdah and placed in motor cars, one of which conveyed the viceroy to the hospital and the other took the vicereine to the official residence.

True to the British tradition, that nothing can be allowed to interfere with British policy in India, the celebration of the inauguration of the imperal capital was proceeded with almost immediately.

The police in the meantime had surrounded the house from which the bomb was thrown and had made several arrests. All the outlets from the city were placed under guard.

Today's celebration marked the carrying out of the announcement which the king made during the coronation durbar, of the transfer of the capital to Delhi. Since that announcement was made the viceroy has been busy visiting various parts of the country and has been able to pay only a few flying visits to Delhi, to inspect the preparations for the advent of the government into the new imperial city.

Today he was making his state entry and had been received at the railroad station by many members of the government, by officials and by a large gathering of native ruling chiefs, most of whom were from the province of Punjab. After the official greetings at the station he had started together with Lady Hardinge on his way to the old fort, whose history is imperishable in India, owing to the prominent part it played in the great mutiny of 1857. It was near this fort that the great durbar was held.

Sir Charles Hardinge two years ago succeeded the Earl of Minto as viceroy of India. Shortly after his appointment he was elevated to the peerage. He is 52 years old and a graduate of Cambridge. Entering the diplomatic service in 1881, he has remained in it continuously until the present time. He served successively at Constantinople, Berlin, Washington, Bucharest, Teheran and St. Petersburg. In 1904 he was appointed ambassador to Russia and two years later was made permanent under-secretary of state for foreign affairs.

CASTRO BOUND FOR NEW YORK.

Visit May Have to do With His Regaining Power in Venuezuela.

NEW YORK, Dec. 23.—Cable despatches announcing that Cipriano Castro, the deposed president of Venezuela, under the alias of Ruiz, is a passenger on steamer Touraine, bound for New York, has caused a stir in the Venezuelan colony here. Opinions about Castro's object in coming to New York differ, but it is believed in some quarters that it has to do to regaining power in the country that cast him out four years ago.

"I cannot imagine what Castro aims to do in New York," said Jacinto Lopez, former consul general of Venezuela, here, "but I fancy that he seeks to make trouble for somebody. Although he has little following here or in Venezuela, he has been led to believe he is wanted by every resident of the republic and he cannot banish the idea of resuming the presidency. He is absolutely powerless, however, and his feeble efforts to start a revolution in his own interest would only excite ridicule."

There are many of Castro's old followers in New York who entertain different views. One of these said the movement to restore Castro to power had gained great strength in the last year and the people are awaiting his coming in order to re-seat him in the president's chair in Caracas.

WILL FINISH THEIR ERRAND.

Miss Jones and Two Companions Only Suffragettes Still Marching.

RHINEBECK, N. Y., Dec. 23.—Miss Rosalie Jones and two companions, all that are left of the goodly band of suffragettes that set out a week ago to walk from New York city, bearing a petition for equal suffrage to be presented to the governor of the state, started from Rhinebeck late this forenoon for Germantown. The crusaders are determined to finish the errand they undertook in spite of whatever obstacles may be encountered.

POLICE BUSINESS.

The police report this morning was "nothing doing". There was something, however, Sunday. A lad was charged with taking a tree from somewhere on the Rocky Farm lands. He acknowledged taking it, but said the tree was growing wild and seemed to of no value. His father was summoned and the matter is held in abeyance. There is no desire to punish the boy if the loss, if any, is made good. Annually about this time there are similar complaints.

A boy already on probation was up for breaking or entering in the daytime one of the fishing houses and taking therefrom some clothing and a stick pin. He agreed on the clothing, which was recovered, but denied the pin. His case was continued for sentence until Friday.

CITIZENS' LEAGUE DECISION.

No Law Should Prohibit Workingman from Taking His Beer.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 23.—The honest and thirsty workingman should be permitted to take his beer to a quiet spot and drink it and no law should prohibit the custom, was the decision of the Central Citizen's League of the District of Columbia as presented to the excise board today in protest against its "anti-growler order." The meeting of the league last night was peppery and there were numerous arguments for and against the resolutions, but they eventually were adopted without opposition. The excise commissioner's issued an order prohibiting the carrying of beer or other liquors in anything but the original packages. Immediately there was a loud outcry by those who had been in the habit of buying the frothy beverage by the pailful. The commissioner took the protest under advisement.

FUNERAL OF MISS SKINNER.

The funeral of Miss Mary D. Skinner was held Sunday afternoon at her late residence on Red Cross avenue, Rt. Rev. Thomas M. Rhinelander, D. D., Bishop of Pennsylvania, her nephew, officiating. The burial was in the Island Cemetery. There were no bearers.

Sunday evening Bishop Rhinelander returned to Philadelphia, Dr. and Mrs. William C. Rives to Washington, and Mr. and Mrs. Frederick W. Rhinelander to New York.

NEW YORK, Dec. 23, Wall Street—The market opened with Amalgamated Copper 70¾, American Cotton Oil 56¾, American Smelting & Refining 72¼, Atchison Topeka & Santa Fe 100, Baltimore & Ohio 104⅞, Canadian Pacific 259½, Great Northern preferred 134½, Interborough-Metropolitan preferred 52¾, New York Central 108½, Northern Pacific 121, Pennsylvania 122⅛, Reading 167½, Southern Pacific 104¾, Union Pacific 159⅝, United States steel 68¾, Lehigh Valley 172.

10—Trading was dull at the opening of the stock market today and fluctuations were small and irregular. The only movements of more than a small fraction were in Canadian Pacific and Western Maryland, which lost a point and Republic Steel preferred, which advanced 1.

11—Heaviness developed and Union Pacific and the Hill and Copper stocks lost a point. Dealings then contracted, but the market became steadier and rose briskly afterwards, when Steel and Reading were bid up strongly.

Noon—Some restraint was imposed on speculation by uncertainty whether the Supreme Court would announce today its decision in the Minnesota rate cases. Bear traders took advantage of the situation to make a demonstration against the transcontinental stocks but when pressure relaxed the market made up its losses easily. Business was dull throughout the morning and the reluctance of traders to take a decided position was heightened by the approach of the Christmas holiday. Bonds were steady. Money on call steady at 4¾ per cent. Prime mercantile paper 6 per cent. Exchanges $245,057,395; balances $12,857,756.

NEW POSTOFFICE LOCATION.

Reasons Why It Will be Changed When the New Building Comes.

Trend of Business Up Town Makes Distance and Cost of Transportation Too Great.

The announcement that the postoffice is likely to change its location may have been a surprise to some people, who perhaps have reasoned that whatever other changes may come the postoffice is fixed for all time. If one does a little reflection he can see that when the railroad came to Newport in 1865 that was the beginning for a change, for it established a new terminal for the traveling public. At first the railroad and the New York boats used the same terminal, as they had everything in common; then came the building of the present station.

Up to the coming of the railroad the traveling public patronized the stage coach and the boats. The latter went to the postoffice with the mails, the New York boat landed where it does now and was then a mail carrier, but there was also a line of boats to Providence, landing at Banister's, Kinsley's or Sullivan's wharf, as it has been known from time to time. This was also a mail route. The railroad soon became the main carrier of the mails, as it was quicker. The Providence steamers changed to Commercial wharf, and then came the Wickford line, which was a big mail carrier.

Next the trolley cars diverted travel from the river boats and the Wickford line moved to Long wharf. In the intervening time there had been in progress for years a fight between the owners of Commercial and Langley's wharf and the end has been that the owners of the latter have developed their property so that Commercial wharf is no longer the line boat terminal it was and has lost one steamer berth altogether. Thus, with the changes of the times, the point where the summer crowds came and departed has now become only a landing place for excursionists and freight.

Aside from the additional cost of transporting the mails from a general terminal point so far up town, it takes time, 15 minutes being allowed for the trips between the depot and the office. Naturally, it is desired to cut this down as much as possible. Another argument for moving farther up town is a change in the centre of the heaviest mail distribution. The Postoffice Department and the big mercantile firm are great sticklers for locating at convenient centres, and records go further with them in coming to conclusions as to the location of these centres than does the desire to see what always has been. Were records tabulated and deductions made it might be an easier matter to find a location for a new police station than it is when personal desires are taken as the basis of reckoning. One plan goes for results and the other tries to appease sentiment, and of course never succeeds.

JAMESTOWN.

[Regular correspondence of The News.]

The Christmas exercises of the Central Baptist Bible School were held Sunday evening in the auditorium, many parents and friends of the young people being present to hear their songs and recitations. All who took part did so with credit to themselves and their teachers. The church was prettily decorated. This afternoon the celebration of the season was concluded around the Christmas tree, with a good time and refreshments. Every member of the school received a present, besides a box of candy, nuts and fruit. The exercises were in charge of the following committee, assisted by several volunteers: Mrs. A. C. Knowles, Mrs. William F. Caswell, Miss Clara Clark, Miss Kathryn Anthony, Miss Hope Higgins and Mr. Fred Caswell.

The work of raising the new Thorndike has commenced, the start being made at the south end, which will be a dance hall, 52 by 25 feet.

The infant daughter, aged 15 months, of Mr. and Mrs. Wickes, died suddenly this morning at their home on Southwest avenue.

Captain S. Rousseau of New York is spending the holidays with his wife and family on Narragansett avenue.

A box barge is in with 300 tons of coal for the ferry company.

The Fort Greble ambulance crossed the island this morning, to convey a soldier with a fractured leg to Fort Adams for treatment.

Mr. B. S. Cottrell of Charlotte, N. C., is spending the holidays with his mother, Mrs. Ellen Cottrell, on Brook street.

Mr. L. E. Peckham has nearly completed a six-foot sea wall along the shore from the foot of Union street to Lincoln street.

ON A SERIOUS CHARGE.

George Tripp of Tiverton Held in $1,000 Bonds in the Fall River District Court.

George Tripp of Tiverton was held for the grand jury by Judge Edward F. Hanify in the Second District court in Fall River Saturday, in $1,000 bonds as it was found that there was probable cause to believe him guilty on a complaint of statutory rape, brought by Lottie M. Marsden, a 15-year-old girl living in Tiverton.

Tripp was arrested by Inspectors Westgate and Violette on an electric car, as they had previously received a tip from Officer Tower of the Tiverton force that Tripp was on the car. The man made no resistance and when taken before the Marsden girl admitted that he was the father of her child, which was born November 28. Tripp pleaded not guilty to the complaint.

The girl's mother informed the judge that Tripp boarded with her when she lived in Fall River and also in Tiverton. Tripp paid the bills. He was working in Tiverton and she was keeping house for him.

THE CHICAGO CONFERENCE.

Mr. Dresser and Mrs. Elliott Speak of the Progressive Gathering and the Party Plans.

An informal meeting of the Progressives of Newport, with a number of members of the Women's Progressive League, was held Saturday afternoon at the home on Training Station road of Dr. and Mrs. Oliver W. Huntington, who were assisted in receiving by Mr. and Mrs. Balch. Mr. Daniel LeRoy Dresser and Mrs. Maude Howe Elliott, who attended the recent Progressive conference at Chicago, spoke at some length, telling of the work of the conference and the plans of the Progressives.

The first speaker was Mr. Dresser. At the conference all the states were represented and 1,500 persons were present, having made the trip at their own expense. Colonel Roosevelt was introduced by Senator Dixon and made one of the best speeches he has ever made. He emphasized the impossibility of uniting with the Republican party. The Progressive party is composed of both Republicans and Democrats and those who join it must come as individuals. The foundations of the party have been laid, said Mr. Roosevelt, and it has already accomplished more than any one could expect of it.

Mr. Dresser spoke of Miss Jane Addams as a woman of a very sad face and great power. She went into politics because she realized that she had reached the limit of her efficiency unless she allied herself with a party. Senator Beveridge, well known for his excellent English and delivery, said that neither of the old parties can save the South. The good Democrats can come into a sincere, earnest party like the Progressive, whereas the history of the Republican party in reconstruction times will always prevent the Democrats from becoming Republicans.

In conclusion Mr. Dresser spoke of the Progressive state organizations which are to be formed, the state committee to be composed of one member from every voting district. The central committee has headquarters in New York and from there the work will be directed. Beginning the first of the year, the party will endeavor to carry out its pledges and will insist that those who desire progressive bills passed shall vote for Progressives. The Women's Progressive League has headquarters in Providence, and Progressive Clubs for men are being formed.

The other speaker of the afternoon was Mrs. Maude Howe Elliott, who in her characteristic enthusiastic style gave pen pictures of the conference—the big men of the party laying plans on the train, Theodore Roosevelt all alone, reading from a ponderous volume, etc. Mrs. Elliott spoke of Senator Dixon with his broad sanity, Gifford Pinchot, Miss Jane Addams, George W. Perkins, Senator Beveridge, and Frank Munsey. She dwelt on the good record which Rhode Island made in the campaign, expending only $5,000 and sending seven men to the legislature.

It was voted that the Newport County Women's Progressive League should go on and that an A-B-C class in politics be held during the winter.

At the close of the meeting tea and cake were served and plans for work for the leagues and clubs were discussed.

NO FORMAL CELEBRATION.

Father Deady Observes the Thirty-Fifth Anniversary of Ordination to Priesthood.

Rev. Louis J. Deady, formerly pastor of St. Joseph's Church of this city, observed at Pawtucket Sunday the thirty-fifth anniversary of his ordination to the priesthood. There was no formal celebration, Father Deady attending to his usual pastoral duties. Rev. Father Deady was pastor of St. Joseph's from 1895 to 1906 and went from here to the Church of the Sacred Heart, Pawtucket. Since his appointment to the Pawtucket church the debt on the property has been paid, a new rectory with the latest improvements has been erected, the school, church and convent property have been thoroughly renovated, an entirely new heating system has been installed and the debt accruing from this last-named work has been largely cleared.

RECALLED TO WASHINGTON.

Navy Exhibit of Models of All Classes of Vessels Completes Travels For the Season.

The traveling exhibit of the navy, consisting of models from the largest battleship to the smallest submarine, has completed its travels for the season and has been recalled to Washington. Until next summer it will occupy its customary position in the corridors of the Navy Department.

It was first sent to Galveston to the cotton carnival, then to the Iowa state fair at Des Moines, the West Michigan fair at Grand Rapids, the Michigan state fair at Detroit, the Ak-Sar-Ben carnival at Omaha, the exposition at Wichita, Kan.; the Texas state fair at Dallas, the No-Tsu-Oh carnival at Houston, and the South-east Texas fair at Beaumont.

Reports received by the Secretary of the Navy indicate that the exhibit was the star attraction wherever it appeared. Especially was the wireless station a drawing card. The largest attendance was probably at Dallas, where 592,000 persons visited the fair.

TO RE-ORGANIZE THE ARMY.

Ranking Officers Ordered to Attend an Important Conference in Washington.

Most of the ranking army officers in the United States have been ordered to be in Washington, January 8, for an important conference to arrange the details of the extensive plan of re-organization of the army. This will be the last important action concerning the army that the retiring administration will undertake.

The shift contemplates the abolition of the present army departments and the creation of brigadiers as units in different parts of the country. These will be so arranged and proportioned in respect to the various arms of the service comprised as to be capable of troop concentration at a moment's notice into regular army corps.

Some of the features of the plan would require legislation to give them effect. Most of the others can be carried out under executive orders. It is for the purpose of framing these that the January conference is called.

MIDDLETOWN.

Funeral of Mrs. Samuel Dodge from Her Home on Oliphant Road.

Closing Christmas Exercises at the Paradise and the Wyatt Schools.

[Regular correspondence of The News.]

The funeral of Mrs. Samuel Dodge was held Sunday afternoon from her former home on Oliphant road. Rev. Edward E. Wells, pastor of the Methodist Episcopal church, officiated, reading from the Scriptures and offering prayer. He spoke from the passage in Exodus, "Lo, I come to thee in a dark cloud." In closing was read the poem, "Blessed are they who mourn, for they shall be comforted." Prayer and the benediction completed the service at the house.

The interment was in the Dodge lot at the Middletown cemetery where Rev. Mr. Wells read the committal service. The bearers were neighbors—Messrs John Spooner, Elmer Sisson, Charles Albro and Herbert Albro. A number of large wreaths covered the casket, among them one of pink roses and sweet peas, with the name "Sister;" also clusters of narcissus and carnations.

Although Mr. Dodge's condition rendered it unwise for him to attempt to leave the house, his injuries are responding favorably to treatment. A niece will remain with him until other arrangements can be made.

The Paradise School presented an elaborate program on the closing day, giving a short play followed by a cantata which required many characters and costumes. The exercises opened with the school song, "Christmas as it comes." The following characters participated in the first play, "Christmas Eve:" Santa Claus, Stephen Barker; Christmas Fairy, Janet Peckham; Mother, Susie Pedro; children—Clarence, Arthur Brooks, Joseph, Frank Pedro; Hilda, Isabella Anderson; Jeanette, Rosie Nunes; Ruth, Magdalen Pedro; Walking doll, Annie Rose; Jack in the box, Raymond Champlin; Teddy bear, Manuel Silvia; Gingerbread man, Manuel Ray, Jr., Clock, Julia Wright.

The Cantata which followed was entitled, "Christmas Gifts of all Nations," with the cast as follows; Father Christmas, Lawrence Hohn; pages, Starlight, Annie Taylor, and Sleighbells, Arthur Brooks; Aurora Borealis, Elizabeth Ray; Christmas gifts—a box of candy, Rosalind Perry; a drum, Manuel Ray; a doll, Annie Rose; packages, Mary Rose and Mary Peters. American children—girl, Isabella Anderson, boy, Raymond Champlin; children of other nations—German girl, Janet Peckham, French girl, Rose Nunes; Scotch girl, Mary Madeiro; Italian girl, Susie Pedro; Spanish girl, Magdalen Pedro; Dutch girl, Julia Wright; Swiss boy, William Champlin; English boy, Stephen Barker; Indian boy, Frank Silvia; Japanese boy, Frank Pedro; Chinese boy, Joseph Ray. The cantata occupied a half-hour and was an attractive feature of the afternoon.

A small tree was used from which Santa Claus and his assistants distributed gifts. The tree, bore tarlton bags of candy made to represent paper dolls and pencils for the children, beside the usual decorations. Beside these gifts each child had a small present obtained by drawing names from a hat. There were many visitors.

A well trimmed tree was used at the Wyatt School Christmas exercises, with an extensive program opening with a school hymn and an address of "Welcome, Glad Christmas Time" by Lena Dutra. The following numbers were then presented: exercise by two children, Mary Perry and Ruth Brigham; recitation, "Santa Claus," Mary Elshant; exercise by seven children, "A Christmas Class"; recitation, "A slide down hill," Ada Middleton; school song, "Christmas Lullay;" recitation, "How Dolly Spoke"; recitation, "Santa Claus," Lewis Cordoza; "Merry Christmas," George Rose; "Christmas Candles," Fred Webber, Jr.; exercise by five girls, "Love is the Christmas Glory;" school song "Sing, Little Children, Sing;" recitations, "My Tree," by Helen Deterra, Emeline Martin, Wilfred Brown; exercise by four girls, "To Make Christmas."

Recitations, "A Song in the Air," S. Francis Peabody; "Why do bells for Christmas ring?" Mary Dutra; Christmas play, by 10 children; recitations, "Christmas Night," Sylvia Flanagan; "Two little Stockings", Nellie Peabody; "Christmas Day is Coming," Dorothy A. Peckham; trio by three girls, "Beautiful Star of Bethlehem," recitations, "Christmas Day," Edith Deterra, "Dolly Speaks," Clara Brown; "A Christmas visit," Mary Cardoza; "The Second Plymouth Christmas," Willard Brigham; "What the Stocking Said," Florence Barker; "A Christmas Blessing," Rosie Cordoza; dialogue, Hall Webber and Francis Peabody; school song, "Hark, the Bells"; small play, "Mr. St. Nicholas." Then came the distribution of presents.

The room was decorated with red bells, flags, strings of popcorn, etc., and there were a number of visitors.

A peculiar accident occured at the Charity Farm, South Acquidneck avenue, last week. While operating the washing machine in one of the buildings near the house Mr. Robert W. Smith was severely cut at the wrist by a piece of glass from a breaking milk bottle. The gash severed an artery. With presence of mind Mr. Smith closed the wound with his other hand. Those from the house were summoned by his cries, but were too frightened to be of assistance. A man passing on the road, however, applied a tourniquet and a doctor was summoned to dress the wound.

Contrary to the orders of the men by whom he was employed, a Portuguese working for Messrs. Arthur and Lincoln Sisson, in attempting to operate the corn husking machine, had a finger slit open and was obliged to be taken to the city for treatment, last week.

Miss Juliette Schwarz is making an extended visit in Newport.

Teachers returning home from out of town for the holidays include Miss Elizabeth P. Anthony of Montclair, N. J., her sister, Miss T. Grace Anthony of Providence; Misses Winnicbell and Ardelia Peckham of Newton, Mass.; and Miss Nellie R. Peckham of Newport, also Miss Edith M. Peckham, private secretary to the superintendent of schools, Morristown, N. J. Miss Mary Smith who has been teaching in Bristol, is guest of her parents.

Christmas tree festivities for the three churches in town will occur this week, that of the Berkeley Memorial Chapel this evening at the Berkeley parish house, the Methodist Episcopal Church Tuesday evening, and Holy Cross and St. Mary's Friday afternoon, at the latter place.

NEW HIGH JUMP RECORD.

Indoor Athletic Meet Won by Torpedo Station by Safe Margin.

Full and Varied Program of Events at the Army and Navy Next Month.

The Torpedo Station team won the indoor athletic meet at the Army and Navy Young Men's Christian Association Saturday evening by a comfortable margin. There was a fair-sized attendance, though many who would ordinarily be interested were attracted by the Christmas shopping down street. The running high jump record was broken by Munsey of Fort Greble, whose jump measured 5 feet 3 inches, whereas the record was held by Smith of the Louisiana and Johnston of Fort Adams, tied at 5 feet 2 inch.

The Torpedo Station secured 24 points, Fort Adams 18 and Fort Greble and Training Station 15 points each. Messrs. Andrews, Ross and Sutherland acted as field judges, with Messrs. Ash and Conahay as timers. The summary:

220-yard dash—First, Geisert, Torpedo Station; second, Ramsey, Fort Adams; third, Ketchan, Training Station. Time, 29 4-5 seconds.

440-yard dash—First, Geisert, Torpedo Station; second, Lineberger, Torpedo Station; third, Turned, Torpedo Station. Time, 66 4-5 seconds.

880-yard dash—First, Turner, Torpedo Station; second, Aggers, Training Station; third, Lichenstein, Fort Greble. Time, two minutes, 30 4-5 seconds.

Mile run—First, Ketchan, Training Station; second, Lichenstein, Fort Greble; third, Turner, Torpedo Station. Time, 5 minutes, 10 seconds.

Shot put—First, Connor, Fort Adams; second, Aggers, Training Station; third, Caswell, Fort Greble. Distance, 38 feet, 11¾ inches.

Running high jump—First, Munsey, Fort Greble; second, Aggers, Training Station; third Geisert, Torpedo Station. Height, 5 feet three inches.

Three standing broad jumps—First, Munsey, Fort Greble; second, Connor, Fort Adams; third, Ramsey, Fort Adams. Distance, 30 feet.

Pole vault—First, Connor, Fort Adams; second, Harris, Torpedo Station; third, Ramsey, Fort Adams. Height, 7 feet 8 inches.

Athletics will be given full sway at the Army and Navy next month. The basket ball league is to begin the first week in January, with games every Saturday night. Fort Greble, the Training Station, the Torpedo Station and it is hoped Fort Adams will be entered. In addition to these Saturday night games, another team known as the Army and Navy Five, is playing every Tuesday and Thursday evening. Their schedule for January is not filled out, however, and they are on the lookout for teams to arrange games.

Monday, January 6, a handball tournament for a copper cup will be played off. January 9 there will be a dual track meet with the Newport Young Men's Christian Association at the latter's gymnasium. January 15 will see a wrestling match for the Association light-weight and feather-weight championship. January 18 there will be an indoor track meet at the Army and Navy, similar to the one Saturday night January 21 there will be a dual track meet between the Army and Navy and Newport Associations, at the former's building. January 25 the Newport and Army and Navy Associations will send teams to New Bedford to compete in a triangular meet.

A NORWEGIAN CAROL.

Curious Pealing of Bells in Hymn "Christmas Eve" Sung at United Congregational Church.

At the United Congregational Church Sunday morning an addition was made to the program of music as published in The News Friday last. This was a Norwegian hymn or carol entitled "Christmas Eve," the words by The. Caspari and the music by Per Reidarson. The composition was sent to Miss Eleanor May Barker by a Norwegian friend, who was good enough to send with it a literal translation of the words, which Miss Barker put into English unrhymed verse. The friend gave this explanation of the song:

"The bells mentioned in the song are a curious pealing of church bells, rung (or beaten as gongs, to judge by the sounds) from 4 until 6 in the evening on Christmas eve, before the tree is lighted. It is really a wondrous sound, subdued and monotonous, yet full of mystery and promise—at least to the young mind—a continuous sound, sining and swelling in volume, 'Ringing in the Yule,' as we call it."

Correspondent to the change of thought in the poem is the apparent division of the music into two parts, so that it seems like two verses in one. The song, though simple, is beautiful.

The writer of this brief note adds that perhaps an illustration of the bells here referred to may be found in one of Grieg's Lyric Pieces for Piano, entitled "Klokkeklang" or "Bellringing," op. 54, No. 5, or No. 35 of "Lyrische Stucke," Edition Peters, No. 3100. The effect of this piece properly played is accurately described in the language quoted above.

TO DELIVER OPENING ADDRESS.

Miss Julia C. Lathrop to Speak at Child Welfare Conference in Providence.

The directors of the Child Welfare Conference, which is to open in Providence January 6, have obtained Miss Julia C. Lathrop, the first woman to be made chief of a government bureau, to deliver the opening address. Her subject has not yet been announced, but she will discuss the welfare of the child and explain the part the federal children's bureau plays in the uplifting of children of the country. The directors feel they were especially fortunate in obtaining so prominent a woman to open the conference, and from her experience in social work much is expected.

For a number of years Miss Lathrop was associated in Chicago with Miss Jane Addams at Hull House, as chief aid, and at times when Miss Addams left for work in other cities she was given full charge. She has served on many social workers' boards throughout the West, and at one time was a member of the state board of charities in Illinois. She is one of the national leaders in philanthropic work, and her recent elevation to the position she now holds in Washington was gratifying to the people of the nation, as it is said it would have been practically impossible to have found another woman so well equipped for the station.

Miss Lathrop among other things has studied the institutions for the insane in Europe for her own state. She has served as the director of the Juvenile Protective Association in Chicago and was one of the first on the bureau she now heads to plan for the registration of the birth rate.
